

When Mothers Work, Their Children Pay

(This is the third of a series of articles on the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency in Greater Victoria.)

Children whose parents both work generally get poorer marks at school, get more school detentions, are more often called before school teachers and counsellors because of bad behavior, and are late for school more often than children whose mothers stay home to look after them.

These facts were determined in a just-completed exhaustive five-year survey taken among the 910 students at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

It is the only known survey of its kind ever taken in Canada and proves what has been feared for some time—that working mothers are having a very serious effect on the characters of their children.

One thing the survey did prove in favor of working mothers is that their children stay away from school less than other children.

But, school principal Bernard Gillie explains, there is a tendency to come to school when a mother is not at home. Often a sick child stays in the school sick room rather than stay at home, because there is no one at home to take care of him.

"Often when a youngster is ill at school we can't send him home because there is no one home to look after him.

"We often phone a mother at work and she tells us to take the youngster home and

BENNETT RECOVERING AFTER SURGERY FOR REMOVAL OF STONE FROM KIDNEY

STEVEN TRUSCOTT
... 10 years?

Killer, 15 Won't Go To Jail

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen-year-old Steven Truscott, whose death sentence for murder in the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynn Harper was commuted Friday to life imprisonment, will be committed to a provincial training school with other youngsters rather than to a federal penitentiary with adults.

Good behavior could reduce his time in custody to as little as 10 years.

The boy was sentenced at Goderich last Oct. 1 for the slaying of the girl whose body was found in a woodlot near the Clinton RCAF base. He was to be hanged Dec. 8 but had received a reprieve until Feb. 18 to allow time for his appeal.

Money Factory Raided

VANCOUVER (CP) — An intensive international investigation started Friday following discovery of an underworld factory that police said flooded North American cities with $1,000,000 worth of bogus travelers' cheques and United States $20 bills.

Police said the factory, complete with a one-ton electric press and engraving plates, was scattered in two houses which also contained $174,110 in partially printed bogus $50 Bank of Nova Scotia travelers' cheques and U.S. $20 bills.

The raids followed a telephone tip from the underworld late Thursday.

The discovery touched off an international probe by RCMP, FBI and U.S. treasury department agents.

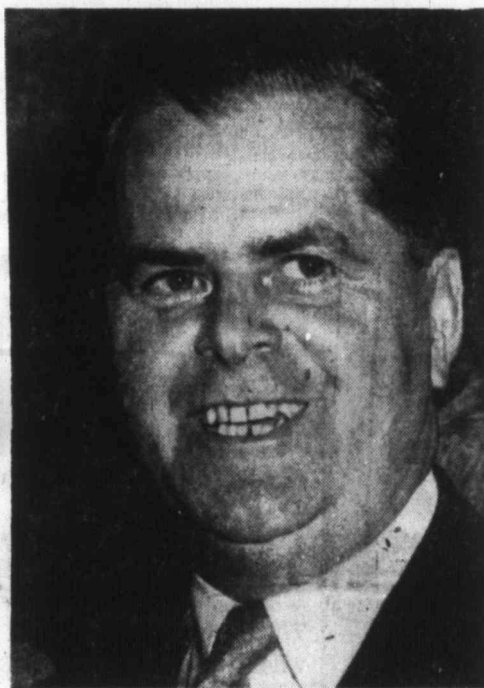

A warrant was issued charging Llewellyn Theodore Welch, 48, with counterfeiting and possession of counterfeit money. Welch, who has been in hospital for nine days with a heart condition, is under police guard.

Fraud detectives raided one home after receiving the tip. They found a trunk containing the money and an assortment of printing paraphernalia, including inks, paper-cutting instruments, type-setting equipment, paper and a money order photograph.

Later they raided the second house and discovered the press. There were 29 engraving plates in the trunk and two with the press.

"The trunk and the press together constituted a complete printing factory," said deputy chief constable Gordon Ambrose.

Tranquilizers Hold With Painful Grip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Heinz E. Lehmann, a prominent psychiatrist, told Senate investigators yesterday that people can become addicted to the use of tranquilizer drugs. He called it "a dangerous abuse."

Dr. Lehmann said large doses of meprobamate, sold under the trade names Miltown and Equanil, if continued "over a period of several weeks will produce addiction."

Dr. Lehmann, chief psychiatrist at Verdun Protestant Hospital in Montreal, was a pioneer in promoting the use of tranquilizers in North America.

Dr. Lehmann and Dr. Fritz Freyhan, research director of the Delaware State Hospital, said Miltown advertisements in medical journals contained inaccurate and misleading statements. They singled out claims that the drug was "non-addictive" and "well-suited for prolonged therapy."

Sedan Chair Outpaces Sports Car

LONDON (Reuters)—Racers of liveried law students carrying an 18th century sedan chair Friday beat a fast sports car with an ace racing driver at the wheel through traffic-choked London streets.

They won a race from St. Paul's Cathedral to John's Court, off Fleet Street—less than a mile.

Major Operation 'Not Alarming'

Premier Bennett yesterday successfully underwent an emergency operation for the removal of a kidney stone.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said last night the major operation, lasting almost two hours, was a success and gave the 59-year-old premier's condition as satisfactory.

Mr. Bennett was stricken Tuesday night with what was believed to be "a simple case of flu." He remained home Wednesday, and Thursday afternoon he was admitted to the hospital for observation.

The final decision to operate at once was made at 1 p.m. yesterday after surgeons studied two sets of X-ray plates.

News of the serious nature of the premier's illness came just six days before the opening of the fourth sitting of the 25th B.C. legislature on Thursday.

A government spokesman said it was hoped that Mr. Bennett would be back on the floor of the House at the time of the presentation of the budget Feb. 12.

Doctors warned, however, that it would probably be three weeks before the premier is discharged from hospital.

Health Minister Eric Martin, it was indicated, is a likely choice for acting premier.

The premier's executive assistant, Dan Ekman, told reporters Mr. Martin holds the post of permanent deputy premier and "presumably that succession will be followed for the opening."

Well Enough Monday

However, he added, it is anticipated the premier will be well enough to discuss with his advisers final details for the forthcoming session on Monday.

Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent of St. Joseph's Hospital, explained the nature of the operation which was scheduled for 3 p.m. yesterday—the time of a press conference in the premier's office.

"It is a major operation," said Dr. Boettcher, "but under present-day techniques it is not alarming. It is not critical."

Dr. Boettcher said X-rays showed a single stone in the left kidney.

He said final decision to operate was not taken until 1 p.m. yesterday, a scant two hours before the operation took place, and added, "The nature of the condition is not one that can be left..."

Two surgeons who successfully completed the operation were not identified.

"I have been asked not to disclose their names," said Dr. Boettcher. "But I can assure you the premier is in good hands."

Mrs. Bennett was with her husband right up to the time he was wheeled into the operating room, and she remained at his bedside through the evening.

Dr. Boettcher said "no difficulties" are anticipated following the 105-minute operation to remove the kidney stone. It had been estimated surgery would take two hours, but it was over at 4.45 p.m. some 15 minutes earlier than expected.

Out in Three Weeks

Barring unforeseen complications, said Dr. Boettcher, Mr. Bennett may be ready for discharge in about three weeks.

It is the first hospital sojourn of his adult life for Mr. Bennett, a man of outstanding vigor who is normally brimming with health and enthusiasm.

A spokesman for the premier's office said Mr. Bennett had been absent from work for health reasons on only two occasions. Once he suffered from flu and on the other occasion had a sprained tendon in his heel.

Mr. Bennett worked a full day Tuesday, leaving his office about 6 p.m. His executive assistant said the premier showed no signs of illness and "completed a very full and busy day." He said it was while at home Tuesday evening that Mr. Bennett first complained of an upset stomach.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan expressed sympathy and best wishes for a speedy recovery by Mr. Bennett on behalf of all opposition members of the House.

"It was with regret that I learned that the premier has been stricken," said Mr. Strachan from Vancouver, where he was visiting UBC.

"I sincerely hope the operation will be successful and that his recovery will be speedy. I extend to the premier and Mrs. Bennett the sympathies and best wishes of the Opposition."

Other members of the premier's family, living in Kelowna, have been advised, a spokesman said, but at present there are no plans to bring them to his bedside.

Liberal Chair Empty

There will be empty chairs on both sides of the House when the fourth session of the 25th Legislative Assembly opens Thursday.

Besides the stricken Premier Bennett, Tom Bate (SC, Vancouver Point Grey) and P. A. Gibbs (L, Oak Bay) will be absent. Mr. Bate has been ill for some time and Mr. Gibbs underwent a serious operation Thursday. His condition was good in Royal Jubilee Hospital last night.

Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy, who has been on the sick list for weeks, expects to return to his office Monday.

Piccard Plunging Into Deepest Abyss

Showdown

Algiers Army Chief Fired by De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle yesterday fired Maj.-Gen. Jacques Massu as army chief in Algiers in a showdown with Algerian right-wing settlers who threaten revolt over de Gaulle's policies.

At the same time it was announced that de Gaulle would visit Algeria Feb. 5 for an inspection trip of the rebellious North African territory.

It was not immediately clear whether Massu also was removed as civil administrator of Algiers, the capital of Algeria.

De Gaulle moved swiftly to smash the opposition elements in Algeria who hold Massu, a paratroop general, as their hero and who have vowed to fight against de Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria.

ABOARD THE USS LEWIS (UPI) — America's cigar-shaped bathyscaphe Trieste today submerged in the Marianas Trench southeast of Guam in an attempt to reach the bottom of the world's deepest known underwater canyon.

Dr. Jacques Piccard, one of the scientists participating in the dive, and Lieut. Don Walsh were aboard the bathyscaphe as it began its dive early today.

Dr. Piccard reported that all was well as it reached a depth of 200 feet. The deep dive is expected to last about 10 hours.

The Challenger Deep, which forms part of the Marianas Trench, is believed the deepest in the world, and to touch its bottom is one of the scientific objectives of the Trieste.

Dr. Andreas B. Rechnitzer of San Diego, Calif., who heads the operation, had to postpone the dive Friday for 24 hours because of inclement sea conditions in the trench.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A LOT of people like cracker-box houses. They don't want grace, originality or planning.

This gloomy message was delivered to a committee of architects by spokesmen for several Victoria groups.

The nasty little subdivisions that have swallowed so much farm land found several defenders. The architects' committee was told that such houses are cheap, and people like them.

It transpired that homeowners in five subdivisions developed since the war (according to an opinion survey) were satisfied with the interior design of their houses.

Dreary standardization is the rule because of the greed of mortgage companies and the ignorance of the public. People aren't taught about house design or given a chance to develop taste.

The cracker-box villages are sprawling across the countryside because they are what the people want.

Make Them Moveable

People of the next generation, or the generation after, may not want them at all, but they will be stuck with them.

There seems to be a ready answer to that problem: If we must build nasty houses, build them so that they can be torn down easily and re-erected elsewhere. Manufacturers already have plans for such houses.

Pre-fabricated buildings of weatherproof plastic sheets and blocks are the answer. They could be hooked together like a Meccano or Tinkertoy model, and placed on land that was leased for 30 to 40 years.

When a new generation came along that was trained to accept planning and graceful design, the biscuit-box houses could be taken to pieces and moved to a frontier suburb.

The land on which they stood could then be returned to farm or parkland, or used as a site for homes of more suitable design.

Martha McBride Funeral Held

Funeral services were held recently for Martha McBride, a well-known city nurse and resident of Victoria for 60 years.

Miss McBride, who was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, came to Victoria in 1900. She graduated in 1911 from the St. Joseph's school of nursing.

At the outbreak of the First World War, she went overseas with the Canadian Army Medical Corps, Victoria Unit No. 5. During service at Salonika she was twice mentioned in dispatches, and awarded the Royal Red Cross.

She also served at No. 5

Canadian Hospital in Liverpool and at Craigdarroch Castle in Victoria, a military hospital during the war.

Later she worked with the American Social Service.

Returning to Victoria she served for many years as the social welfare officer at Royal Jubilee Hospital, and later as part-time assistant at the Victoria YWCA.

Miss McBride was a member of the Canadian Nursing Sisters and a member of the Victoria Red Cross. She is survived by a brother Richard, in Chemainus, and a sister in Seattle.

Fitness Is Easy

Learn to Relax

By LLOYD PERCIVAL
(Sixth of a Series)

Today's column concludes your basic fitness program, so let's finish up by teaching you how to relax.

That's the aim of the final exercise, called—

TIGHT AND LOOSE

Purpose: To start off on your day loose and relaxed and to teach you how to let your muscles relax when you want them to.

To show you the feeling of relaxation as opposed to tension and to provide a basic muscle relaxation control.

Method: Stand with feet apart.

Clench hands loosely and place on chest.

Take a deep breath and as you do tighten all the muscles of your body—not too tightly, but just enough to create noticeable tension.

Hold for four or five seconds, and then exhale slowly.

LOOSE, LIMP

As you exhale, let all your muscles go loose and limp, allowing your arms to drop to your chest, jaw hanging open.

As you collapse, let your knees give a few inches in order to release leg tension.

Do nine to 10 times, trying to "let go" more each time.

Finish off this exercise by hopping a couple of times on each foot—just a little hop.

As you hop, let all your muscles go loose and your arms dangle. Let your head drop and your shoulders bounce loosely—just like a rag doll coming apart at the seams. Thirty seconds will be plenty, but you can do more if you like.

WALK AWAY

Note: It is strongly recommended that in addition to doing these exercises every day you go for a good walk at least four times a week, with two really good walks on the weekend. If you are badly out of shape, start with a 10-minute walk and add several minutes every three or four times.

Use the fast-slow system of walking—walk easily for 50 yards, fast for 25, and alternate in this way throughout the walk. Wind up with at least 100 yard of easy walking.

THAT'S THE PROGRAM

This, then, is your basic program featuring the seven exercises designed to do the required fundamental job on each of your basic fitness requirements.

It can gradually be developed into a truly rugged workout or it can remain as a mild workout sufficient only to keep you basically fit.

One thing is certain. Performing fitness activity is like putting money in the bank.

The more often you do it the higher the return will be.

NEXT: How sports fit into your fitness program.

Eat and Grow Younger

Not Only Protein But Proper Kind

By LELORE KORDLE
(Sixth of a Series)

Not all proteins are alike. It is not as much a question of "protein" as it is a question of making certain to eat enough of the right kind of protein—or complete proteins.

The youth-protecting value of the protein foods you eat depends not so much on the quantity as on the quality of the proteins you select.

In recent years you've probably heard or read about "the amino acids." What this means is that all food protein is broken down in the chemical laboratory of your body into amino acids.

Amino acids might be well described as the travelling form of protein in the human body.

Body Builder

From these amino acids, after they reach the bloodstream, your chemically efficient body proceeds to construct the kinds of body proteins needed to repair or replace the varying types of worn-out body cells.

The truth about these various kinds of food proteins was first suspected when laboratory animals were noticed to be slowly starving to death on an exclusive diet of certain proteins, and yet thriving on an exclusive diet of still other proteins.

Some Complete

From these observations it was discovered that some foods are complete proteins, while others are incomplete. What this means is simply that some foods (the complete proteins) contain all of the essential amino acids, and other foods do not.

You could live to a healthy, youthful old age by eating nothing except the foods that are complete proteins (witness the exclusively meat-eating Eskimos and gauchos), whereas slow starvation would be inevitable if you attempted living exclusively on the incomplete, not wholly digestible proteins found in vegetables and fruits.

All Essentials

Lean meats (this includes gland-meats, fish, poultry) eggs, cheese and other milk products are complete proteins, that is, they contain all of the essential amino acids in correct proportions for maximum human nourishment.

Whole grain products, soybeans, legumes and some nuts are classed as partially complete proteins—meaning that their amino acids are not in balanced proportions to meet all body needs. However these proteins are valuable "secondary" foods.

Seven in Corn

Vegetables, fruits and some grains are incomplete proteins. Corn, for instance, contains only seven of the essential amino acids, while cabbage has even fewer.

Yet by no means does this lessen the value of vegetables, fruits and whole grains in your diet: that "incomplete" means is that you would eventually starve to death trying to subsist entirely on these low-grade protein foods. But these incomplete proteins can be used to great advantage in a diet as supplements to the high-protein foods.

Doubts Gone

A diet built around foods containing all of the essential amino acids is a youth-protecting health-protecting diet because it is a high-protein diet.

If any doubt still lingers in your mind that a high-protein diet is imperative if you are to look younger and live out your allotted span of years (four score and more) let me remind you again that you are made of protein.

Let the outline briefly what we know to be the direct effect of the essential amino acids on the human body. (You needn't remember their names—which are jaw-breakers!)

Arginine is called the "fatherhood amino acid." When seriously lacking in the body, the sex instinct undergoes a marked decrease in men and women alike.

Tryptophan is known to help ward off signs of premature aging. It protects you against certain eye disorders, easy susceptibility to colds and respiratory disorders.

Valine is directly related to the nervous system (one part of the body that really takes a beating as we grow older), and your diet must contain plenty of this protein if you want to avoid nervous disorders and digestive upsets.

Normal Weight

Methionine, if seriously lacking in the body, may cause hardening of the liver (cirrhosis) and nephritis (a serious kidney disease). It is also necessary to maintain normal body weight.

All of these essential amino acids, plus the literally thousands manufactured in your body from them must do an uninterrupted job of building, repairing and replacing, if you are to remain a living animal.

To make sure that you have the correct answer to the nutrition riddle "How much protein is enough?" your safest bet is to eat more than enough.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency, said yesterday Russia's space achievements have created a "cockiness" in the Kremlin that could "stir up a good deal of trouble" throughout the world.

He told the U.S. House space committee the "cockiness" started with the launching of Russia's first satellite. This "created an intensity of reaction throughout the world which has been rarely paralleled by any other single discovery or invention."

Allen, who feared the Soviets might engage in some "adventurousness" in foreign affairs, said the rest of the world regards Russia as the No. 1 space power and thinks it will remain so for some time.

"Although we continue to see the hope expressed abroad that the United States will catch up, we also see a growing doubt that this is likely during the next five or even 10 years."

Whites Threaten Boycott

Strife Still Stalking Kenya Conference

LONDON (Reuters) — African Negro delegates last night lifted a five-day boycott of a conference here on Kenya's constitutional future, but there was a threat a white settler group might impose one of its own.

The Africans, from the British East African colony, accepted a compromise offered by Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod in a dispute over special advisers.

But members of the right-wing All-European United party were angry over the main point of Macleod's compromise. This would permit African adviser Peter Koinange to enter the conference building on a special pass, although not sit in on the talks.

The colonial government in Kenya regards Koinange as having a special responsibility for the Mau Mau emergency in Kenya seven years ago.

White delegates objected to his presence but the Africans insisted and boycotted the meeting at its opening Monday to back their demands.

The United party delegation has threatened to walk out if Koinange attends. The next session is set for Monday.

Out of Fear Emerges Hope

KHRUSHCHEV'S statement that Russia possesses "incredible" weapons apparently is no mere boast. The acknowledged success this week of the firing of the longest-range intercontinental missile yet to be launched by any nation tends to confirm belief that Russia's power in this field is increasing more rapidly than that of the United States.

This, coupled with the knowledge that the U.S. has achieved almost equal accuracy with missiles of somewhat shorter range, may induce fatalism or strike fear into the hearts of some people, according to their view of the future of the human race. It could, however, give rise to hope instead.

Both sides now have demonstrated their ability to shoot "blind" over vast distances and hit targets or score misses close enough to destroy what they might seek to destroy. Both sides long ago had shown their ability not merely to wipe out one another, but to turn the globe into an uninhabitable void.

Where lies hope in such a terrifying prospect? Simply in this: that both sides will have the intelligence to foresee the holocaust which an overt act could precipitate. Surely neither Russia nor any Western nation dare start a nuclear war if the end of it might be the annihilation of all life on the planet. For each weapon of aggression there is a weapon of retaliation and the side which triggered the first nuclear weapon against a foe could plunge the world to destruction.

That for a long time now has been the great hope behind the arms race: that the weapons of nuclear warfare, like those of gas warfare in 1939-45, will be outlawed more by mutual fear of the consequences of their use than by treaties. What would be left then for the prosecution of "bush-league" wars would be recourse to conventional weapons, a word capable of varying interpretations but generally accepted as excluding the productions of the nuclear scientists.

Russia's success with intercontinental ballistic missiles, placed alongside those of the West, thus may compel one of the late Mr. Dulles' agonizing reappraisals of the machinery of defence, but need not reduce Western peoples to a state of despair. On the contrary there is that much more inducement to all nations to work for disarmament—if not total, at least broad enough to encompass all the dreadful, inhuman machines which the scientists have devised to make possible the depopulation of the earth.

It is a strange thing that hope should have a basis of fear; but there it is.

Hon. 'Tommy' Davis

BECAUSE he was a figure of national distinction, having served his country in varying high posts, the sudden and unexpected death this week of Hon. T. C. Davis came as a shock. Although he was a resident here only during the past two years, Victoria has reason to share in the general regret at his passing.

There are thousands of former prairie people in this city, and to many of them the name of "Tommy" Davis evokes a wide realm of remembrance. This was the friendly familiar way in which they thought of and referred to one of Saskatchewan's brightest sons. If they did not all know him personally they felt they did; he was part of their experience and his name almost a household one.

It is a tribute to a man who gains eminence and who by virtue of his talents and personality occupies posts of national stature that he should be so regarded. This will form not the least of the honors that will be paid to the memory of the Prince Albert boy who made a fine place for himself in public life.

Mr. Davis' record of achievement was proof of his versatility and aptitudes. In turn he was mayor of his native city, attorney-general of his province, an appellate judge, wartime administrator and an ambassador in foreign lands. He was a fluent and ready speaker, he had a bright mind, his sympathies were wide and he was always well informed—these qualities he brought into play in each of the posts whose variety illustrated the diverse character of his abilities.

Since coming to Victoria two years ago Mr. Davis had begun to lay down fresh roots. Obviously so well rounded a man would be drawn into local life, and the former ambassador quickly made his presence felt. Only recently he had done splendid work in connection with the University Fund drive, and there were other local projects to which he would have lent a wise and guiding hand.

Victoria indeed is bereft of a decided asset in the death of Hon. T. C. Davis. He had reached the biblical span of years but he was so active and dynamic of person it seemed there was much yet that he might do in public service. The condolences reaching Mrs. Davis, in which this newspaper shares, will therefore be heartfelt and genuine in this city as well as elsewhere across the land.

Looking to the Future

WANDERING architects and housing critics to the contrary notwithstanding, Victoria will never be like any other city in Canada. The latest program of the city parks branch is one illustration of many that could be cited. Victoria from the rooftops is seen as a city of trees and it aims to stay that way. Mr. H. W. Warren, city parks administrator, unveiled his 1960 schedule of tree-planting this week. The James Bay area is to have its boulevards brought up to Victoria's unique standard, with flowering and deciduous trees to be planted on 17 streets in that area. Other parts of the city will receive the benefit of the balance of the planting to be done this year.

The interest which annually draws flower lovers and botanists from all parts of the continent to Victoria by reason of its verdant cover is a secondary benefit. The first, of course, is the grace and shade of tree-lined streets which soften the outline of all buildings, and flood the curbs in season with petal-rains in every residential section. This year's planting will include acacia, chestnut, red maple, cherry, mountain ash, elm, birch, flowering plum and the May-blooming hawthorne—all standard stock of the city's own nurseries.

Interpreting the News

Changing Defence Factors

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

HAND-IN-HAND with talk of world peace goes the drive for newer and deadlier weapons.

Within the last several days the two most powerful nations on earth, the United States and Soviet Russia, unveiled some of the details of their armament plans for 1960.

Neither indicated that settlement of world tensions was just around the corner.

President Eisenhower disclosed a military spending plan totalling close to $41,000,000,000, slightly more than last year. In the budget were three more nuclear-powered, Polaris-firing submarines, final-stage development of the 6,000-mile ICBM Minuteman, and an increase in the number of B-52 heavy jet bomber wings from 11 to 14.

In Moscow, Premier Khrushchev boasted of a formidable new weapon of "fantastic" strength.

He sugar-coated that announcement with the further announcement that Russia would reduce its present military force of 3,623,000 men by 1,200,000 "in the course of one or two years."

The reduction, assuming it is carried out, would place the U.S. and the Soviet Union about on a par in the number of men under arms. The U.S. plans to have 2,488,000 men in uniform by mid-1961, just about the present level.

President Eisenhower also asked for $2,000,000,000, up $700,000,000, to arm the U.S. NATO allies with new weapons.

The thinking behind the armament plans of the two nations has important similarities.

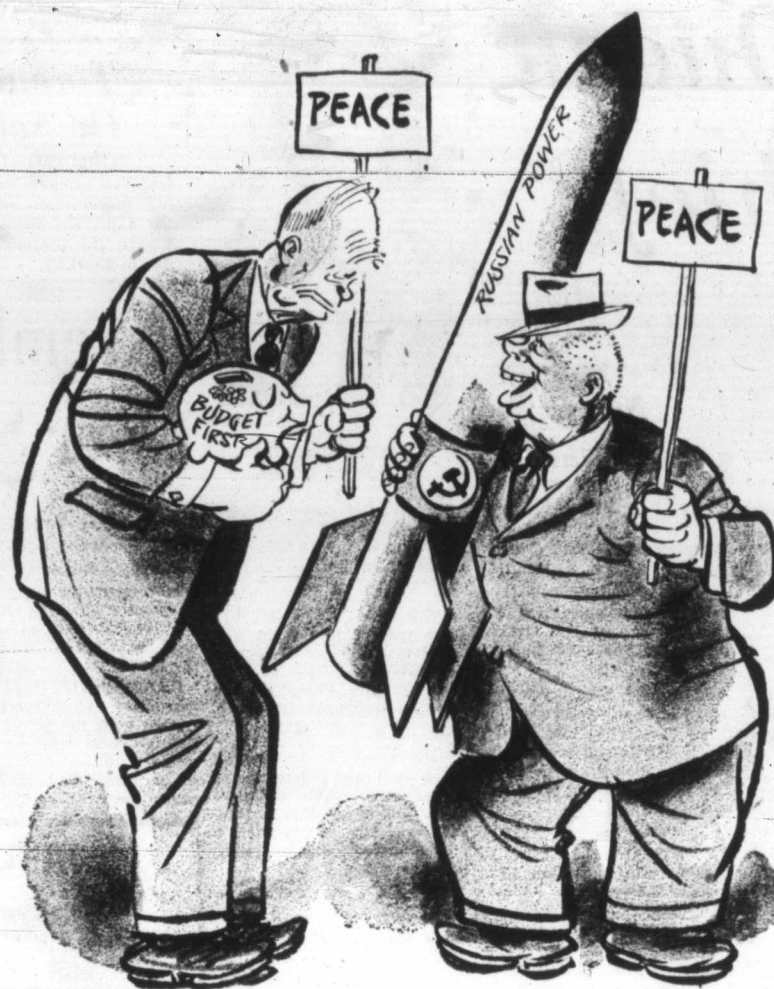

Both are in the transition period from conventional armament to the new concept based on rockets and nuclear power.

The manned bomber and fighter is taking a place of decreasing importance.

Heavy emphasis is being placed on the nuclear submarine, a floating submerged base for rockets almost impossible to detect and possibly the most fearsome weapon of all.

The U.S. expects to have the first of 15 submarines armed with a 1,500-mile missile combat-ready by this fall. A recent Swedish report said that Russia has a 2,500-ton nuclear-powered submarine now operating in the Baltic.

Out of all this comes the conclusion that, despite all talk of peace and world disarmament, this remains an uneasy world in which potential antagonists intend to negotiate only from positions of strength.

"Now it's just a question of whose kind of peace"

Human Needs

Science And Art Are for All

"SCIENCE, we are told, is international; knowledge knows no frontiers," said Sir John Wolfenden, vice-chancellor of Reading University, in one of a series of talks on "Learning for the Future" broadcast in the BBC's general overseas service.

"That was certainly so in what we in the West call our Middle Ages. Then, with the growth of feelings of nationalism, science tended to become nationalistic too, especially when it was applied to such enterprises as warfare and competitive trade. But in this 20th century we have the chance of making it international again—this time for such beneficial purposes as the production of food."

The interchange of scientific knowledge now went on regularly and fairly systematically, Sir John said, for the scientist recognized an obligation to spread his knowledge of truth, irrespective of national frontiers or ideologies. He felt a duty towards what used to be called "the republic of learning."

This applied to other intellectual knowledge and to art. For example, East and West did not find it easy to appreciate each other's art forms, but at least nowadays each recognized the fact that the other's art was something to be taken seriously.

"For art provides the opportunity to express feelings and emotions without the sometimes misleading vehicle of words. Human feelings and emotions often go deeper than the more strictly intellectual processes of thought, and the expression of these emotions, for instance in dance or in the cinema, can often get across frontiers more effectively than conceptual thinking expressed in words."

"To put it another way, people at opposite ends of the earth more often feel alike than think alike; and the expression of those feelings in art may well make an impact at a deeper human level than mere abstract thought could ever do."

Morality, too, was an international link, Sir John said, although there were many differences in what people of different civilizations considered "good" or "bad," "right" or "wrong." Indeed, there were differences of opinion between individuals of the same civilization about this sort of thing. But all were agreed that these adjectives of moral praise or blame did mean something, although there might be many views about the precise meaning.

The immediate concern was to meet human needs on the material and physical plane, Sir John said, and this called for a gigantic operation in education, in the application of technological skills and, above all, in mutual understanding.

Professor L. J. Lewis of the Institute of Education, London University, followed Sir John's comments by saying that in the contact between the industrialized democracies of the West and less industrialized countries, a new world of opportunity and understanding was opened up by technical aid and community development.

This was not, he said, just a matter of applying Western knowledge and ideas to the problems of new nations, without regard to the traditions of the peoples themselves, and the problems which they considered of first importance. "However generous national and international effort may be, however carefully planned, the human values must not be neglected."

Reports from Ottawa

ARE the minister of finance and the governor of the Bank of Canada at loggerheads again?

On each of the last two Mondays each of them made a Canadian Club speech in his home town—the former at Toronto, the latter at Winnipeg.

Finance Minister Fleming warned against dangers of economic instability, inflation, and high costs. Governor James E. Coyne teed off mainly against imports of foreign capital, especially from the U.S., as causing us to live beyond our means "on a grand scale."

Among the most jarring of Coyne's comments:

"Canadians 'are incurring foreign debt to pay for both a level of capital spending and a standard of comfort which are higher than would be justified by our own earning capacity.'"

"We are not producing ourselves out of our (trade) import deficit, but are getting in deeper."

Canadian sources can provide investment capital "as large in total as is sound and healthy for the Canadian economy to sustain in any one year." This would require "self-restraint and morale" by Canadians and—concerning capital imports—"it is a question of how fast foreign enterprises are to develop their projects in this country."

That is odd phraseology. It almost seems as though the listener was expected to interpolate "be permitted to" before "develop."

Mr. Coyne obviously had read Fleming's speech of a week earlier, because he quoted from it. But he did not quote what Fleming had said about foreign capital, to wit:

"The rapid development of our resources has been greatly aided by investment of capital from abroad."

Life's Swiftest Years

By GREGORY CLARK

A BOY is a small boy for a long, long time. But when he enters his teens the years flash by like the telegraph poles seen from a train window.

A little boy grows millimetre by millimetre, not even inch by inch. At three he is much the same fellow he will be at five. When he is seven, except for very superficial changes, such as not wanting to sit on your knee any more, he could very well be nine. At nine, barring some slight enlargement, he is still the very lad you took a shine to six years and more ago.

A little boy lingers a long time in childhood, and the years crawl by. But when he hits thirteen the tempo changes. A drum beat begins. The pace accelerates. It is not merely a matter of size, though the size is astonishing enough. Every six months there is an alteration in size, shape and bearing. But the physical changes are nothing compared to the changes in temperament and personality.

The eight years between twelve and twenty are the swiftest years of human life. So swift, indeed, that sometimes you can't keep up with that boy, and he is lost among the strangers.

'But Not as I Do'

TRAFFIC rules and regulations are made for the good of the general public, but there are many people who believe in observing them only under compulsion.

They figure it a waste of time to obey stop signs or other notices which are designed to protect against injury or confusion.

And the same people who ignore the traffic rules and regulations would reprimand offspring who attempted a similar manoeuvre. These parents adopt a "don't do as I do, do as I say" attitude, and then wonder why children are disobedient and sometimes get into difficulties.

We know of people who lecture their children on the dangers of disobeying traffic rules and then deliberately disregard them themselves while in company of their youngsters.

—FORT WILLIAM TIMES-JOURNAL

Dying With Terror

The Tax Man Cometh

By CASSANDRA, from London

IN the 1870's the standard rate of income tax was fourpence in the pound.

William Ewart Gladstone (why doesn't somebody get to work and write a really good biography of this granite pillar of bewhiskered rectitude?) held the view that income tax was a temporary measure that should be abandoned as soon as possible.

A contemporary chancellor of the exchequer said: "Income tax is generally regarded as the financial reserve of the country which should be kept available for emergencies." This was a comment which was taken quite seriously and, under the last Disraeli government, the rate fell to twopence in the pound.

When this penal levy was first imposed 160 years ago the total revenue from it was £6,000,000. In 1958 it yielded £3,000,000,000.

Now the Institute of Directors is campaigning against surtax, which is imposed on all who earn £2,000 a year and over. Since most people in this country don't earn anything like £2,000 a year and since politicians always count the sources of their votes with a cynical glance in the direction of their constituents, they tend not to concern themselves with the rights of a comparatively well-to-do but tiny minority.

Nevertheless surtax is a monstrosity.

In 1918 the level at which surtax began was fixed at £2,000 a year. That, over 40 years later, is still the start-line for this imposition which yields only £160,000,000 out of a total inland revenue of nearly 20 times that amount.

Anybody who earned £2,000 a year in 1918 was a rich man. The equivalent today would be someone earning well over £10,000 a year, according to the treasury.

Mr. Henry Brooke, when he was financial secretary there, estimated that the gross earned income needed by a married man with two children to equal, after tax, the purchasing power of a gross earned income of £2,000 in 1938, was £12,200. So what was originally a levy on the decidedly rich is now a punitive expedition on the middle and managerial class who do so much to run the country.

The impact of inland revenue, which imposes this swinging tax on all who earn from £2,000 a year upwards, is also pretty wounding lower down the scale. So much so, that the factory worker making £12 or £14 a week also thinks that overtime is a mug's game.

The Institute of Directors, however, overplayed their hand in their passionate appeals to the chancellor of the exchequer to have a heart. They have reproduced a ludicrous letter from the late Lord Webb-Johnson, the eminent surgeon, on the question of estate duty.

Very rich people in making over their fortunes in order to escape the heaviest death duties have to survive a five-year period before their bequests become tax-free. Lord Webb-Johnson is quoted thus: "The five-year period leads to serious anxiety states, particularly as it nears its end, and I have several patients in an extremely dangerous condition as they contemplate the terrific penalty which will be the result of their failing to live till the end of the five years."

This melodramatic heart-cry may bring a tiny tear in Millionaires' Row but not much more than a derisive horse-laugh elsewhere. Dying with terror because the tax man cometh is a bit of an over-kill.

Relax, Buddy

AMONG the curious items in President Eisenhower's forthcoming fiscal budget there is a concealed fund of $1,000,000 for a special purchase on behalf of the U.S. armed forces. It is to buy tranquilizers for the troops.

The rough, licentious fighting men used to do it on rum and brandy. Now they do it on soothing pills.

Bleep, Bleep

THE Russians are great boys for giving gifts.

They have been pelting President Eisenhower with them ever since Khrushchev visited the United States. Last month Nikita sent him 40 trees and shrubs to plant at his farm in Gettysburg. Earlier this month nine suitcases marked "handle with care," and each one of them weighing just on two hundredweight, arrived in Paris on their way to Washington for the president. Contents—unknown.

When I was on a radio and television show with Mr. Adjoubé, the able and lively editor of the official Russian newspaper Ivestia, he gave me a present—and a very perky one, too. It is a model of a sputnik that has a musical box inside and plays "Soviet Land."

At every fourth bar the melody is interrupted by six beeps—just to let the world know who is the Big Brother of outer space.

Letters to the Editor

Who's a Capitalist?

If Great Britain is a nation of little capitalists, as Richard L. Thomas said in the Colonist of Jan. 13, then who is doing the work? Most capitalists don't work because they don't have to; they own enough capital to supply them with a far greater unearned income, than wages of the earned variety ever could.

This applies to both large and small types of those whose incomes are the result of unpaid labor. Owning $500 of various shares, while paying on a $5,000 mortgage, doesn't make a worker a capitalist; it only illustrates a worker who is $4,500 in the hole.

Society's Products

The current eagerness to attach most of the blame for the latest wave of anti-Semitism to the remnants of the Nazi party is certainly stretching the imagination. Are they supposed to be the cause of anti-Semitism in Russia or the U.S.A.?

Any exhaustive study of the subject will show that racial and religious discrimination was around long before German capitalism's Adolf came along to give it a little unnecessary aid. It is also a pertinent point to realize that dictatorships and concentration camps were conspicuous by their absence before class society came into being.

So long as the world's workers support commodity production so long will they suffer the miseries thereof. A little more than 10 seconds' thought will surely illustrate that prejudices such as religious pride and religious discrimination, patriotism and race hate are all related and are not the cause but the products of our present type of society.

LARRY TICKNER.

Anti-Semitic Trash

The anti-Semitic letter reproduced in Sunday's Colonist was the work of a careful person of foreign origin—maybe a disgruntled Nazi sympathizer or Communist stooge. I presume we have a little of both kinds of trash even in Victoria.

Maybe it is world-wide propaganda (Russian, that is) in an effort to undermine the forthcoming summit conference regarding the position of West Berlin.

Carved-Up Back Good Guy's Fate

DETROIT (AP) — "That's said he was beaten unconscious. He said he was a good guy," a widowed father of five said of the eight-inch letters a scalpel-wielding teenage girl admitted she carved on his back.

Earl A. Thomas, 45, was reported in good condition after the initials "R. W." had been cut into his back Thursday.

Joan (Rusty) Wierda, 17, a high school student; Gerald H. White, 17; Leslie Saunders, 20; Robert G. Holes, 23, and Donald Demankowski, 24, were held for investigation.

Officers said the girl told them she carved the initials because "I hate my father and he (Thomas) looks like him." Thomas told police he met the girl and Demankowski in a restaurant and drove them to the girl's apartment.

He said he was invited inside and at least one other man waiting inside. Thomas

Will 'Pollyanna' Play 'Lolita'?

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — "Pollyanna" as Lolita? Fourteen-year-old Hayley Mills, who stars as "Pollyanna" for Walt Disney, has been offered the role of the 12-year-old nymphet, but, from British actor-father John Mills' reaction, I doubt that Hayley will be allowed to accept. Besides, Marlon Brando is after this excellent young actress to play his daughter in a film. I don't remember Marlon as a movie father before.

Kim Novak is dating the New York field since director Dick Quine took off for Europe to find locations for "The Image Makers," starring Ava Gardner and Glenn Ford. Another Kim—Stanley—has a standing rule for all her contracts whether movie or television: No interviews with anybody.

While father Prince Ali Khan likes the she's, his son, the young Aga Khan prefers the Skis. He is being considered for the British Olympic team, to compete at California's Squaw Valley.

Jack Lemmon, on how to look sick for the cameras — "I just leave off the make-up and act natural."

Oh, no—Not another end-of-the-world picture! It is reported in London that Sir Carol Reed hopes to film "The Rock Cried Out" which, like "On the Beach," bumps us all off.

Debbie Reynolds left her diamond and emerald matching sets in a bank vault when she flew to Miami and New York. They were Christmas gifts—valued at $50,000—from Harry Karl, and Debbie didn't want to lose them. She must be serious about Harry.

Dick Powell, Four Star Films and Mrs. Steve McQueen are trying to persuade Steve McQueen to give up auto racing at Palm Springs. "But I enjoy racing and I don't take risks," says Steve. That's what the late Jimmy Dean said.

Dr. Finch Sorry

Fleeing Murder Suspect Stole Two Cars

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. Bernard Finch, in his flight from the scene of his wife's slaying, stole two automobiles and unknowingly abandoned one in a policeman's driveway, the Finch-Tregoff murder jury was told yesterday.

The defense for the surgeon made no attempt to deny that Finch took a station wagon and a red Cadillac in the early morning hours of July 19 and drove the second to Las Vegas, Nev.

Attorney Grant Cooper lightly remarked to the owner of the station wagon:

"Dr. Finch offers his apologies."

Finch, 42, and co-defendant Carole Tregoff, 23, drove from Las Vegas in Miss Tregoff's car to the Finch home in West Covina, Calif., on July 18, the day Mrs. Finch was killed near her garage.

Carole has told authorities she hid in the bushes near the Finch home for five hours after the shooting, while police swarmed around, and then made her way back to a country club parking lot and drove her car alone to Las Vegas.

A witness was just getting into Miss Tregoff's conflicting stories of what happened that night when the trial was recessed until Monday morning.

Police officer William Ryan said Carole first told him she did not carry any bag or case up the driveway to the Finch home. She subsequently said she did carry up an attaché case because she said the doctor wanted the flashlight inside it. The state says it was a "murder kit."

Ryan's testimony was halted temporarily by objections from

Miss Tregoff's attorney that she had not been advised of her constitutional rights when she made the first statement.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

"Trench up the quarters, laying the earth in ridges, that it may be mellowed by frost and be fit for use when the season for cropping them comes on; for if you do not get your earth in readiness at this season, you will have too much business upon you in the Spring."—A Garden's Calendar, 1592.

This homely admonition was written 378 years ago, and while a lot of traditional gardening practices have been modified in the intervening years, this is still very sound gardening advice. For not only does too much business press upon you when the gardening season really opens up, but manure and compost dug in too late in the season has no chance to decay and thereby provide food for the plants.

Many a sowing comes to nothing because of late soil preparation. Lots of folks have the idea that manure is manure; you dig it in, bung in your plants, and the roots start eating it right away. The truth of the matter is that even the mellowest, richest old manure actually depresses the soil fertility temporarily, while it is rotting down and becoming assimilated in the soil.

As one old gardener once put it to me, "A plant can't use it until you can't see it." If this principle is kept clearly in mind, you can see the necessity for an early start on the preparation of the soil. Don't worry about the goodness of the manure leaching out in the winter rain before you can get your plants in—the beneficial effects of a heavy manure dressing will still be felt three years from now.

As you probably know, I am more than a little hipped on the subject of mulching. In high summer, I mulch everything in sight, particularly at the approach of one of our summer dry spells, and I use anything that comes to hand as mulching material—lawn mowings, sawdust, fallen leaves, straw, old newspapers, excelsior, wood chips, slabs of stone, or what have you.

An up-island friend of mine, though, is going me one better. He is mulching his raspberries with coal ashes, and he is turning out raspberries the like of which I never saw before.

He saves, and treasures every speck of ash for his coal furnace, and sits it to get rid of the useless fine stuff. Big clinkers are broken up with a hammer, and the coarse ash is stored outdoors to weather until the harmful free sulphur has been washed away. The raspberry patch gets a dressing of six inches of the stuff, and this is topped up annually with another inch or two.

The canes grow like crazy, like grass in a cinder path—and bear heavy crops of first-quality fruit. He has no weed problem at all, no bugs, no blights, and no work except the annual cutting down of the fruited canes. He tells me, too, that while the roots remain cool and moist under the blanket of cinders, the patch is always dry underfoot, and he has even gathered the berries while in bedroom slippers!

The Viewing World

By John Crosby

Program to Clear the Air?

The first positive whiff of self-improvement to come to network television since the quiz scandals will land on NBC-TV at 9:30 tonight.

This is NBC's ambitious "World Wide 60," a resounding title, which will replace the ill-starred "Five Fingers," an unfortunate adventure strip spawned by Twentieth Century-Fox. "World Wide 60" is a program of news, special affairs, documentary, and general uplift designed to quiet the pangs of conscience, the outcries of columnists, and the shrill screams of congressmen.

First of the new NBC shows will be "Castro's Year of Power," a study and appraisal of Cuba under the regime of Fidel Castro. The program has been in the planning stage for six months. A ten-man crew has been in Cuba for a month under NBC correspondents Frank McGee, and Wilson and Lee Hall.

Head of the new "World Wide 60" unit is Julian Goodman, who was brought to New York from Washington where he was NBC's head of news and special events. "We're not just doing hard hitting news on this show. We'll have a show on alcoholism, one on geriatrics (the study of old age), one about a jazz musician who lost a young child and wrote a whole jazz story on it.

"This is a pretty cynical world and we're doing something people have wanted us to do for a long time. But after it was announced, the reaction in some quarters has been 'Aw, what are you doing that for?' Well, we're going to do it anyway."

Goodman was asked whether it wasn't the quiz scandal that gave birth to "World Wide 60." He sighed: "This is really the era of news and public affairs. Van Doren may have accelerated this process but not more than a week or two—and I wish I could convince somebody of that."

Actually, some of these shows like the one on alcoholism which is being written by Philip Wylie and Charles Jackson have been in the works a long time. However, it's not altogether certain that this or other high-minded projects would actually have got beyond the script and planning stage without the impetus of scandal.

"We're taking the problems of real life, which I think are more important than the problems of fiction," declared Goodman. "We are hoping to put a little real life into the TV schedule. The show on alcoholism is being written by two pretty talented and uncompromising men."

He was reminded that it took a long time to get the series on the air. "I don't doubt there is a paucity of worthwhile programs on the air. Last year if 'Five Fingers' had been dropped, it would have been replaced by 'Six Fingers.' This year, we waited for the first cancellation and when it came we stepped in."

One of the shows will be the "Missile Race" which sounds a little as if NBC is copying CBS's "Biography of a Missile." Goodman vigorously denied this: "We're going to do another part of the story. It's such a fast-developing story I feel we have to do it. And we're not going to be edited by the opposition. After all, we're the first to get on the air with a planned series."

"I agree with you that television should take a lead sometimes in developing news stories," commented Goodman wryly. "But I also believe there are some things we can't do as well as the newspapers—such as the in-depth treatment of the Gamble Benedict story."

TAIPEI, Formosa (TNS) — Sometime this spring Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is due to retire as president of Free China.

The constitution makes it clear that this must take place after two terms in office. And Chiang himself has said that the constitution is more important than the individual, and that this will happen.

He would become merely leader of the Kuomintang—the Nationalist party—and Vice-president Chen Cheng would become president.

That's the theory. But actually the chances of this actually happening are about as likely as Eisenhower playing golf with Alanbrooke.

This winter the constitution will either be amended, reinterpreted or an emergency "out" will be found so the 73-year-old man can continue in harness. He will probably be president until he dies.

Formosa without Chiang running it is inconceivable—especially to Nationalist Chinese here.

But possibly—and even probably—the Chinese Communists will take a hand in creating the emergency.

American and Chinese military brass here anticipate a renewed aggression against the offshore islands before or around the time of the East-West Summit conference in May.

It would be a good time. An appropriate time to increase world tension. Mao Tse-tung and the Red leaders must be as apprehensive about a Khrushchev-Eisenhower get-together as is Chiang Kai-shek. Chiang admits seeing "no possible good" coming from a meeting.

There is fear here that when Quemoy is bombarded again Communist planes may put in an air strike on Formosa. Then there would be Nationalist aerial retaliation.

The Nationalist air force—primed and confident and exceptionally able—are sobbing

On the books it is clear that Vice-president Chen Cheng will succeed. But will he? There could be an attempt by the old die-hard Chiangmen to take over—to pursue a go-for-broke gamble by returning to the mainland.

There are an increasing number of Young Turk types—who while they would like to return to China proper—are realistic enough to concentrate on developing Formosa.

When Chiang dies it might be a way for the U.S. to accept the fact that Red China does exist. Though the U.S. couldn't immediately recognize Communist China, it might not oppose its admission to the UN.

But meanwhile Chiang seems in good health. And he continues to talk with confidence about returning to the mainland with his army within a couple of years. It seems highly unlikely that he ever will.

Hope Fades For 406

COALBROOK, South Africa (UPI)—Rescuers bored with agonizing slowness last night toward 406 miners trapped 600 feet down behind a rockslide honeycombed by pockets of poison gas. There was little hope that any survived.

Volunteers working with bare hands and pickaxes called for drills to try to sink an air shaft to the men trapped more than 24 hours on a two-mile-long gallery in the Clydesdale coal mine.

The slide smashed huge ventilating fans, officials said, and all 400 Negroes and six whites probably were suffocated by deadly fire damp gas released by the rock and coal slide.

Rescue workers went into the pit bearing canaries which would topple over at the presence of the colorless, odorless gas.

Canucks Whip Cougars; Seattle Here Tonight

By FAN FARE wait Ditzert

WOW!

DID YOU CHECK HIM!

CHECK ROOM

Victoria Cougars, who were unable to break a lengthy jinx at Vancouver last night, will try to extend one almost equally as long when they tackle Seattle Totems at Memorial Arena tonight.

Not since Dec. 28, 1958, have the Cougars won a league game at Vancouver Forum, and their streak was extended to eight games last night as the Canucks checked them.

Totems Whip Flyers Again

Seattle Totems stayed close to Vancouver Canucks last night, and Winnipeg Warriors, currently the hottest club in the Western Hockey League, jumped into fifth place by extending their longest unbeaten streak of the season to six games.

At Seattle, a crowd of 3,579 looked on happily as the Totems continued their hex over the Flyers with a 4-2 win. It was the fourth straight loss for an Edmonton club which had started their last coast trip on a sizzling note of 10 wins in 12 games.

At Winnipeg, the Warriors made it five straight victories.

into submission and handed them a convincing 6-1 setback. Cougars lost their last two games at Vancouver last season, this season have lost five and tied one at the Forum.

But it has been a streak that wasn't run up easily. The four previous Victoria-Seattle clashes have produced some of the best hockey of the season and the Cougars had to go all out for the full 60 minutes to get their seven points.

And they'll get the Totems back at full strength—centre Guyle Fielder and goalkeeper Bev Bentley returning to the lineup last night—and intent on their drive towards a second straight Western Hockey League championship as well as putting more daylight between themselves and the third-placers.

The Cougars, of course, will be anxious to make up the two points they lost last night in their effort to grab the runner-up spot and, possibly, to make a run for the league lead.

Cougars, who had scored five goals in each of their previous three games, just couldn't get started last night against tight Vancouver forward-checking and the alert offensive play of their opponents.

PRETTY GOAL
Canucks scored twice on deflections in the first period and ran their lead to 5-0 in the middle 20 minutes before George Ford scored a pretty goal to avoid the shutout.

But a return to Memorial Arena is likely to make a big difference. The Cougars have won five of their last six on home ice and are 15-4-2 for the season playing in front of their own fans. In 21 games here, the Cougars have scored 71 goals and allowed but 40.

In 24 games away from home, they have scored only 62 goals, been scored on 75 times.

Cast of Four Small But Strong In City's 'Glass Menagerie'

By BERT BINNY
A compelling performance of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" was provided by the Intimate Stage at Victoria University auditorium last night.

This play is another of Victoria's entries in the Dominion drama festival and the opening performance was witnessed and assessed by regional adjudicator Janie Stevenson of UBC.

Characterization by the cast of four was consistently deft and strong. Even more commendable was their capacity to effect changes in mood, temperament and atmosphere—whether sudden or gradual—smoothly and realistically. A few slight defects were apparent, diction in certain cases being one. Lighting was well conceived and executed and the setting was adequate.

Directed by Flora Nicholson, Margaret Martin played the mother with Wendy Yates as the daughter and Tony Nicholson as her son. Joe Moore played the gentleman caller.

Drug Companies Called Arrogant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mike Gorman, executive director of the National Committee against Mental Illness, urged the government yesterday to slap down medicine manufacturers he accused of "arrogant profiteering."

Arm the food and drug administration with money and authority to check on the clinical claims made by pharmaceutical houses for their various preparations.

Testifying before the senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, Gorman called for action to:

Nose Cone Found Intact, Reds Hint

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet scientists indicated yesterday that the Russians might have recovered the nose cone of the missile they fired 7,766 miles into the Pacific Wednesday.

Academician S. Sobolev told the Communist party newspaper Pravda that the test realized "dreams of scientists to receive information about the moon, Mars, and Venus." He said that observations would be established "in our lifetime" on those planets.

'Secret' Crime Probe Record Dusted Off in Chicago Scandal

CHICAGO (UPI) — The records of Chicago's old Big Nine crime committee, now locked in a city hall vault but allegedly spelling out charges of police corruption, took a key role yesterday in the city's free-for-all police scandal.

State's attorney Benjamin Adamowski said crimes commission records would be his next target for grand jury study. He said Downey Rice, former chief investigator of the Big Nine, will testify and may disclose even more police corruption.

The Big Nine committee, established in 1952 by the city council to investigate police corruption and the often-legend Chicago "crime-politics"

Plane Crash Probes

FBI Finds Bomb Kit

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — FBI agents have found the ingredients for a home-made bomb as well as dynamite after arresting ex-convict Robert V. Spears, who is being questioned about the suspected sabotaging of an airliner which crashed Nov. 16 in the Gulf of Mexico, killing 42 persons.

Although the FBI in Washington declined comment, it was learned from sources close to the investigation here that agents had discovered electric tape, flashlight batteries and dynamite blasting caps — reportedly at Spears' desert hideout near the home of his friend, William A. Turska. Spears was listed as one of those killed in the airliner crash.

Spears is being questioned by FBI agents in a closely-guarded room here.

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of Julian Frank, the heavily-insured lawyer who died in a Jan. 6 plane crash, has been taken to a hospital because of a miscarriage.

Her lawyer, Carl J. Rubino, blamed the miscarriage on "harassment which arose from unfounded speculation and irresponsible conjecture" concerning her husband's death.

Federal officials have speculated that a bomb caused the North Carolina crash that took 38 lives, including Franks'.

Attention centred on Frank when it was learned that he carried almost $900,000 in life insurance.

Magistrate Scores Two Youths For Their 'Amazing' Way of Life

In city court yesterday Magistrate William Ostler sentenced two youths to six months each at Oakalla for possession of a stolen car, after chiding them for their way of life.

Sentenced were Donald R. Ferguson, Brentwood, 18, and Leo J. H. Past of Calgary, 19. Ferguson was also sentenced to one month, concurrent with the others, for driving while under suspension.

"It is amazing that two such young men should have spent so much time just wandering around the country, borrowing, living by your wits, your work habits haphazard," Mr. Ostler said. "This way, you are heading for serious trouble."

James C. Sprague, 17, of 2215 Edgelow, was remanded for sentence in Colwood Police Court after court was told he'd forged his father's name to a cheque for $75 made out in his own favor, on Jan. 8.

In the same court Colin Jeffrey McCay, 1047 Lodge, was fined $10 and costs for fishing in Harris Creek without a licence.

Smallpox Seare Hits Millions in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities Friday pushed a massive program to vaccinate or revaccinate tourists and Moscow's 5,000,000 residents against smallpox, following a sudden outbreak of the disease.

Representatives of three firms were fined in Oak Bay police court yesterday for operating without the required trades licence. Each pleaded guilty.

Haven Signs 450 Seamen

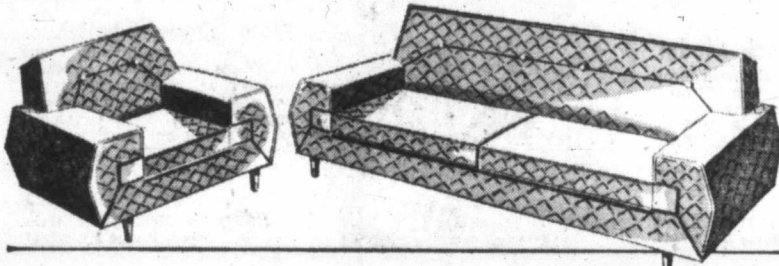

PORT ALBERNI — More than 450 crew members from 17 ships registered at Seaman's Haven during December, manager W. D. Timms told the first meeting of the year.

Elected second vice-president was A. Robertson.

Jim J. Petne, of Jim Dandy Clean Up Service, 3323 Douglas, was fined $25 for operating as a general contractor; John F. W. Drury, Drury's Transfer, 710 Johnson, $5 for operating a transfer and cartage business; and Sunrise Industries, Vancouver, Ltd., Vancouver, $25 for taking orders for sale of merchandise.

Sprawl, Ugliness Here Too

You Can't Push People
Architects' Panel Told

Architects Hear Home Planning Woes

Subdivision
Owners
Satisfied

By R. O. MARRION

Regulation of people's homes and communities can't be pushed far beyond what people think they want, a committee of distinguished architects was told several times yesterday in Victoria.

The architects, completing a cross-country study of Canada's residential environment and obtaining view of many sections of the populace, heard of Victoria problems familiar elsewhere: urban "sprawl," ugliness, monotony and mediocrity in housing.

But it also heard from the Victoria Local Council of Women that a survey in December disclosed that home-owners in five subdivisions developed since the war were satisfied with the interior design of their homes and were almost unanimously satisfied with the size of their lots, although some felt there was a lack of varied exterior design.

'Attractive'

From the University Women's Club of Victoria it heard a description of the old Lansdowne airfield subdivision—sharply criticized by planners—as "attractive for people with modest incomes."

And from Reeve George Chatterton, of Saanich, it heard that "if I had continued (with a proposed policy of combatting urban sprawl) through limiting development to certain areas I would have been tarred and feathered." It would require a tremendous amount of education before people would accept such restriction.

From J. Everett Brown, B.C.'s deputy minister of municipal affairs, it also heard the personal opinion that community planning, a comparatively new profession, hasn't had "adequate time to reassess its advice in terms of what can be done in a true political sense—acceptable to the majority of the people."

Education

A member of the University Women's Club delegation, Muriel Johnson, suggested earlier education on housing and seemed to surprise the architects.

The pride of ownership of four walls, she said, superseded anything else in the minds of children she taught; this was a thing they must have as soon as possible. They showed active interest in good home design, but most young people hadn't the opportunity to learn anything about it until "they're so tied up financially they can't do anything else."

Among other submissions to the committee:

Low Cost

Victoria's low-cost residential subdivisions, the Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C. said, "with few exceptions show undesirable characteristics, and the trend seems to be to this type of development."

The lack of proper and adequate design of housing "stems we believe from the policy of maximum financing for minimum performance on the part of mortgage and finance companies."

Roderick Clack, Victoria's assistant city engineer and a member of the branch delegation, said he thought it was the opinion of architects and planners "that we have a deep need of some form of overall metropolitan government to overcome the problems that are making a mess of our urban environment."

Not Inspiring

The University Women's Club found some subdivisions "pleasant but not inspiring," and chairman Peter Dobush of Montreal said this indicated an aesthetic sense—"We have been so often told the housewife hasn't the same appreciation for these things as the professional; this indicates she has."

Haggis Heart of Every Scottish Dinner

'End to End'

Be Proud,
Canadians
—Fisher

John Fisher last night called on all Canadians to help foster a "reasonable nationalism" in this country.

Fisher Coy
About Job
In Victoria

Canada's "Mr. Tourism" John Fisher yesterday turned aside all questions about job-seeking here with a soft word.

His compliments centred on George I. Warren, veteran commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, the man whose job has been linked with Mr. Fisher.

"The person who fills George Warren's shoes, wherever it is, will have to have big feet," said Mr. Fisher.

"In all my travels around North America I have never yet met his peer... he's accomplished miracles with the money in hand."

Is Mr. Fisher considering an offer to take over the commissioner's job here when Mr. Warren retires?

"I'm always considering issues concerned with tourism," said Mr. Fisher, smiling.

Further than that, I can only say, any decision about the future of the Victoria and Island Tourist Bureau must come from that group."

Support Court
Chamber Says

Full support for establishment of a family and juvenile court for Greater Victoria is being asked by directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The directors have approved the proposal of the professional group of the chamber to send a letter to the attorney-general, the mayor and aldermen of the city, the reeves and councillors of the municipalities of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, and the members of the intermunicipal committee seeking establishment of the court.

The letter congratulates the intermunicipal committee agreement that each municipality should bear its share of the cost of the court, and urged that each council should proceed on that basis.

65 Boys
Join
YMCA

About 65 boys between the ages of nine and 12 attended an induction service at the YMCA last night and received membership pins bearing the YMCA insignia.

Parents and friends also attended the impressive candlelight service in which the new members learned the history of the YMCA from the boys' work committee conducting the program.

Poorest Area
In World
Needs Help

Victoria will be asked to donate clothing to what is described as the "most destitute area in the world."

The Junior Chamber of Commerce in collaboration with World Refugee Year Organization, is arranging for the shipment of clothing from Victoria to Hong Kong.

Peter Forward, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, told directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce that plans were well in hand for the collection and shipment of the clothing.

Girls' Protection
Police Objective

Protection of the innocent, even more than prosecution of the guilty, is the objective of Saanich police investigating photography in the nude of young Greater Victoria girls.

"Our main concern," said Chief Const. Bert Pearson yesterday, "is to protect young girls from this sort of scheme. We don't want to hurt them, even those involved; we do want to stop the racket, and to keep others from being drawn in."

STRONG DETERRENT

The chief welcomes as a strong deterrent the present glare of publicity, started in a series of articles on juvenile delinquency by Colonist reporter Alec Merrimah.

"We know it's not nice to read; to think that young girls of this community would pose for nude photographs. However, it has been done; pictures have been taken," said Chief Pearson.

"Now, before anyone gets too deeply involved, we want to stop the whole thing. We'll prosecute if we can get enough evidence against the people responsible for setting the racket up, but it's not easy. No arrests are pending at present."

NOT LIKE THEFT

"It's not a bit like prosecuting someone for theft. In that case, attendant publicity does not hurt the victim of the theft."

"Here, young girls have been victimized. Not only they, but their families and friends would suffer from publicity.

"Someone gave them a fast, smooth line of patter about modelling. The girls were dazzled with glamorous thoughts of cameras, movies, beautiful clothes. What started as innocent ambition proved to be something far different—for the photographs were destined only for the smut market."

Loggers
Average
$108.27

Average weekly wages in the logging industry of British Columbia broke the $100 mark in October by rising to $108.27 and thereby joining the pulp and paper mills and public utility operations in the $100-a-week class as the highest-paid industry in British Columbia.

Trade Minister Bonner yesterday also said hotels and restaurants are currently the lowest-paid group, with average weekly earnings of $45.97. This, he said is partly due to the higher incidence of women employees in that field.

Critic Nostalgic

'Rich Ghetto'
Part of City

Vancouver architect C. E. Pratt was influenced by nostalgic affection for Victoria when he said he was aghast while driving in from the airport.

He admitted that yesterday with a smile.

"I went to school here, you know," he said.

But neither he, nor other members of a committee studying Canada's residential environment, nor Victorians who appeared before it, described Victoria as faultless.

John C. Parkin, Toronto architect and just as outspoken a member of the committee as Mr. Pratt, said he was surprised by many things in Victoria, including the "Riviera quality" of the waterfront. He was impressed by two sides of the Inner Harbor—but the third side, he said, "is a mess."

ON ONE SIDE

And he criticized Victoria's "social apartheid" with "a rich ghetto on one side of the city."

These are some of the things said during the day's hearings.

Mr. Parkin: "Around the city I couldn't help but feel some streets seemed to defy the contours of the topography. Who lays them out?"

AUDACITY

Mr. Parkin: Some subdivisions suggest "the audacity of the merchant builder rather than the sensibility of a person with one iota of community responsibility."

Victoria architect Peter Cotton: "There isn't a decent place to live (for elderly people) within half a mile of Eaton's."

Vancouver architect Warnett Kennedy: "How can such an enlightened thing as the Up-lands happen?"

MORE DEMOCRATIC

Frank W. Nicolls, Capital Region Planning Board chairman: "Victoria is a funny place from a social standpoint. It's probably more democratic than any other city I know, yet in many ways it's the exact opposite. Victoria is more a state of mind than a municipality."

The Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C.: "Individually the houses being constructed in these new subdivisions leave much to be desired. The usual epithets apply: stucco boxes of monotonous mediocrity."

The Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, referring to the subdivision of the Saanich peninsula between Shelbourne and Richmond: "This eruption of stucco boxes is subdivision at its worst."

Ownership
Dwindling
—Architect

The day when most families own their own homes on their own lots is coming to an end, a Victoria architect believes.

Why?

Because "you would be better off renting," said Frank W. Nicolls, chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board.

A Canadian home-owner, he said, couldn't write off local taxes and interest payments against income tax, as his U.S. counterpart could, "but an apartment owner can, and the man in the apartment gets the benefit."

Murison Tells B.C.

Pay All Costs
Of Education

The provincial government should assume by degrees the whole cost of operation of the education system and split the cost of new school construction 50-50 with municipal government, Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison said last night.

Speaking to a meeting of the Saanich Progressive Conservative Association Mr.

Murison, seeking a Conservative nomination in Victoria, charged that municipal governments are "forced to meet the requirements of an atomic age with revenues based on horse-and-buggy days."

"The provincial government, instead of using the property tax to do its original job, has taken the easy way out and relieved pressure in its own revenues by using the tax for provincial services. The municipalities have had to raise taxes and increase their debts."

"The way out is to recognize the difference between services to people and services to property and divide financial responsibility accordingly," he said.

"Services to people (hospitals, education, welfare, etc.) are the responsibility of the provincial government, and should be paid out of taxes raised on the ability to pay. Services to property are local responsibility and should be paid out of taxes raised on the basis of benefits received."

He told the gathering that education is a service to the people, and should not be another burden on the property tax.

'Love of Freedom'
In Burns' Verse

Robert Burns put his love of freedom into his poetry and left it behind as a message of hope to all men, Rev. Dr. Harry Lennox of Vancouver said here last night.

Speaking to The Immortal Memory at the annual Burns Night of the Victoria St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society, Dr. Lennox said: "Burns wrote as he believed, and in poetry, the language of all men."

"Burns' poetry is both a prick to our conscience, and a statement that there may yet be worldwide love and understanding," he said.

More than 200 people attended the dinner, held to mark the 201st anniversary of the poet's birth on Jan. 25, 1759, in Ayr, Scotland.

The haggis was carried in by John Robinson, escorted by Gerry English and Stewart Kennedy. Pipers were Pipe Majors Ian Duncan and Francis Knight.

The address to the haggis was given by the society president, Charles Cameron.

PERSONAL MENTION

Among the larger no host parties to be held at the Union Club on Thursday prior to the State ball at Government House will be Col. and Mrs. B. Russell Ker, Capt. and Mrs. W. B. Holmes, Gen. and Mrs. C. R. Stein, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crane, Commodore and Mrs. V. S. Godfrey, Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Wride, Dr. and Mrs. W. Allan Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edgell, Major and Mrs. W. Haddock, Col. and Mrs. R. W. Braide, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Fitzpatrick Dunn.

Col. and Mrs. P. S. Cooper, Royal Roads, will also be among those entertaining at a small dinner party before the ball.

Miscellaneous Shower

A miscellaneous shower was given by Miss Gloria Hawkins, 4366 Raymond Street, Royal Oak, honoring Mrs. S. Donald, the former Miss Sharon Pettigrew. Guests included Mrs. R. Pettigrew, Mrs. W. Donald, Mrs. A. Hawkins, Mrs. E. Fawcett, Mrs. M. Eardley, Mrs. M. Cridland, Mrs. L. Slater, Mrs. H. Young, Mrs. P. Shields, Mrs. A. Lowe, Mrs. E. Pettigrew, Mrs. C. Pearson, Mrs. B. Underwood and the Misses Brenda Pettigrew, Linda Hawkins, Kay Fitzgerald, Judy McMay, Jerry McKay, Marcia Prentiss, Ann Harris, Sharon Wilson, Faye Scott, Florence Girdland, Heather McWilliam, Dorothy Gray, Arden McAlpine and Gloria Hawkins.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: Don't give me heck, just give me advice on how to get out of this mess.

I'm a married man who foolishly got mixed up with a widow who works in the same office. She's 10 years older than I am and has a nice income in addition to her salary. Her husband left her well fixed.

When we first started to go out she told me she was lonely and willing to pay for the pleasure of my company. She picked up the dinner cheques and cocktail tabs. I told my wife I had a second job four nights a week. This woman gave me $80 every Friday so I could bring home an extra pay cheque.

Now I'm tired of this phony set-up and find it hard to look my wife and kids in the eye. The woman says if I drop her she'll tell my wife everything. Also she claims I will be forced by law to pay her $900, which is what she has given me. Please tell me what to do.—NUMBSKULL

Dear Numbskull: Don't let this woman blackmail you. Tell your wife everything. If she doesn't throw you out on your head you're luckier than you deserve.

Stop seeing Mrs. Gotrocks at once and let her know you're no longer her gigolo. I'm no lawyer but it's my opinion that she would have a difficult time getting back money which was paid for your company.

Junior's a Card Shark

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year-old son is a senior in high school. He's an excellent student, also a card shark, which worries me. His Dad says there's no harm in a young boy playing cards, and I can see where it's a good social outlet. But when he wins as much as $30 in a poker game with classmates I think it's terrible.

In addition to the large amounts of money involved, I don't approve of high school kids staying up till 4:30 and 5 a.m. playing cards. They did this at our house last Saturday and I was at a loss as to what to do. Advise me, please.—LUCKY'S MOM

Dear Mom: A card game in which a 17-year-old can win $30 isn't a fun pastime—it's gambling. And the stakes are much too high.

You'll have a tough time getting your son to throw in the deck if he enjoys the game and is an expert at it. Suggest there be a limit on how much a player can win or lose, and tell him no card playing after 1 a.m.

Let's hope this is just a phase.

What Do They Call Pop?

Dear Ann: I've been married almost a year and have three daughters by a former marriage. The children see their father every week and are fond of him.

My daughter, aged 10, asked what she should call her stepfather, as she's uncomfortable calling him by his first name. She claims it doesn't sound nice in front of friends. She says she can't call him Daddy because this name is reserved for her real father. The other children are seven and five and they call their stepdad by his first name as they imitate the oldest one. Can you suggest something?—UPPA TREE

Dear Uppa: Since the real dad is "Daddy," why not call the stepfather "Pop"? If the oldest one starts, the younger ones will follow and the problem will be neatly solved for one and all.

Spray Shoe Cleaner Keeps Leather Dry

Keeping your feet cosy and warm at this time of year can be quite a problem. It is a good start to make sure your shoes are really waterproof. For 98 cents you can buy a jar of waterproof grease that will keep out the rain and the snow.

Just so you cannot say we do not tackle all problems, if it works so well that your feet get hot there is a good shoe deodorant around for $1. Suede shoes that look a little worn can be pepped up with a suede renewer. A tin at $1 will do the trick nicely.

A lazy way of cleaning shoes is a new spray called a Penny Shoe Shine. It has silicones and lanolin in it which protect leather from wear and weather. Large tin with a spray top costs $1.89. Another silicone spray specially for suede shoes, gloves, jackets and purses, claims to make suede an "all-weather" leather. Rain and snow rolls right off treated suede. This spray is $1.49.

Nearly every family has some drip-dry clothing by now, and a plastic covered hanger, non-slip and rust proof is ideal for this sort of laundering. Packets of three hangers cost $1.50 and can be bought separately.

Do you find some skirt hangers get out of shape and have a habit of letting the skirt fall to the floor? Maddening, isn't it? New ones, now in the stores, open and close easily by pressing a plastic knob. The hanger leaves no mark on a garment and still holds it tightly. This useful article is $1.29.

If, like the experts, you apply your makeup before putting on your dress, there is always the problem of trying not to disarrange your hairdo, and smudge your lipstick when slipping it over your head. What difficulties we women have to face.

Some thoughtful manufacturer has now brought out a bag, made of washable nylon, which can be slipped over your head and zipped up the front. Makeup mask costs $1.29.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin James Smallbones whose wedding took place early this month in St. Andrew's, HMCS Naden are now residing in North Vancouver, B.C. The bride is the former Margaret Marlene Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Booth, Fraser Street, and her groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Smallbones, Brooks, Alta. —(Photo by Dorothy Kennedy.)

What's Cooking!

Browning Pot Roast Requires 20 Minutes

By LOUISE MOORE

A good dinner does wonders in putting one in a cheerful frame of mind. So that is what it's to be today.

DINNER MENU

BARBECUED POT ROAST WITH GRAVY

Use a heavy 3-quart pot or Dutch oven with a tight fitting lid. Wipe a 3½-pound pot roast 2 inches thick with a damp cloth and rub into the meat 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon aconit and ½ teaspoon black pepper. Put 3 tablespoons fat into pot and when hot add the pot roast and brown on all sides over medium heat.

Don't hurry the job. It should take at least 20 minutes to have it browned just right. Add to the pot 1 cup tomato sauce (8-ounce can), ½ cup water, 2 good-sized onions sliced, a few leaves of bay leaf. A crushed clove of garlic may be added if liked.

Bring to a simmer and simmer gently, tightly covered, 1½ hours. Do not let it boil. In the meantime, mix ¼ cup catsup or chili sauce, ¼ cup vinegar, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 generous tablespoons brown sugar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, dash tabasco and Worcestershire sauce, and 1 teaspoon paprika.

Mix well and pour over top of meat. Cover and simmer another hour or until meat is tender. Remove meat to heated platter and skim fat off the liquid in pan. Sieve liquid and reheat. Thicken if desired with flour and water paste and serve with the meat.

With this, serve parsley, potatoes, glazed carrots or buttered spinach, a red cabbage slaw and baked apples.

RED CABBAGE SLAW
Shred paper thin, enough tender red cabbage to make 3 cups. Put into bowl, cover celery and a small piece of bay leaf. A crushed clove of garlic may be added if liked. Combine ¼ cup toasted almonds. Simply place them in a shallow pan and pour a little melted butter or cooking oil over them and toast in moderate oven or shake in a frying pan over low heat.

Combine the toasted almonds with ¼ cup well-drained pineapple tidbits. Mix 2 tablespoons of the pineapple syrup with ½ cup snappy bottled dressing. Combine the chilled cabbage with pineapple and nuts and then blend with the dressing using only enough to hold mixture together lightly.

Bridegroom's Twin Acts as Best Man

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently when Evalynne Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Musgrave, 321 Kamloops Avenue, Victoria, became the bride of Mr. John Frederick Sargeant, of Saskatoon, son of the late Rev. and Mrs. John Sargeant, Saskatoon.

Canon George Biddle officiated at the service in St. John's Anglican Church. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a satin over taffeta and net gown, designed with hoop skirt and lace-trimmed train. Her short lace jacket was trimmed with seed pearls and her chapel veil fell from a circlet of white net leaves. The fair-haired bride carried an armful of red roses.

There were five bridal attendants, Miss Jeanie Musgrave and Miss Terry Musgrave, sisters of the bride, Mrs. Fred Thompson, Mrs. David Pemberton and small Fatti Musgrave, another sister of the bride who acted as flower girl.

All attendants chose pastel frocks with matching jackets, with carnation bouquets en tone.

Bestman was Mr. Allan Sargeant.

geant, the groom's twin brother and ushers were three more brothers, David, Keith and Barry Sargeant.

At the reception at Holy rood House, the bride's table was centred with a three-tier cake made by Mrs. Anton Doroshuk, the bride's aunt. A family friend, Mrs. Don Reeves, led the cake.

Mr. Harry Harding proposed the toast to the bride.

For a honeymoon trip, the bride changed into a peacock blue jacket-dress with red accessories. She wore a corsage of white gardenias and hyacinths.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ken Scott, Cowichan Station, the groom's grandparents from Saskatoon, Mr. and Mrs. F. Barker.

Houlahan-Fairholm

A Lake Cowichan bride was married in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fairholm, recently, with her father assisting Rev. T. Bulman in conducting the service.

The bride, Elizabeth Joyce, exchanged vows with Mr. Ronald Houlahan, son of Mrs. A. L. Houlahan of Victoria.

A ballerina-length gown of white lace over taffeta was worn by the bride. A dainty coronet held her chapel veil and she carried a white Bible topped with bronze chrysanthemums. Her only jewelry was a silver cross pendant, gift of the groom.

Miss Olive Fairholm, maid of honor, wore a pink nylon dress and a matching bandeau. Her pearl necklace was a gift of the bride and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Robert Spouse, Victoria, was best man.

At the reception Mr. V. Millburn, Victoria, proposed the bridal toast.

Leaving on a honeymoon to Vancouver and the United States, the new Mrs. Houlahan donned a chocolate brown sheath-style dress with matching coat and accessories. Her corsage was bronze chrysanthemums. The couple plan to make their home in Victoria.

FULFORD GUILD

At an annual meeting St. Mary's Guild, Fulford, all the present officers were re-elected. Mrs. F. L. Jackson, president; Miss Gladys Shaw, vice-president; Mrs. A. D. Dane, secretary; Mrs. W. Y. Stewart, treasurer; and Mrs. A. Davis and Mrs. A. E. Roddis, members of the committee.

Treasurer's report showed that there is a balance of $112 in the Guild's bank account.

After the meeting tea was served by Mrs. L. Mollett assisted by Mrs. A. Bennett who had baked a surprise birthday cake to honor three members whose birthdays fell within three days of each other. The cake was made from a recipe printed in the Daily Colonist six years ago, and of Icelandic origin.

ASSEMBLY NO. 5

Canadian Daughters Assembly No. 5 made their arrangements at a recent meeting for a St. Valentine bridge tea to be held Thursday, Feb. 11, in the Douglas Room at HBC, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Proceeds will go to the Cancer Fund.

SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

With its "grow-in" workability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction.

It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior.

GRADES

"CLEAR"
Bevel
SIDING

Siding of this grade is designed for use where perfection is demanded. It is well milled on face and edges making a smooth surface with a length without waste 6" and 4" wide and more from thick edge.

"A"
Bevel
SIDING

Siding of this grade is selected for use where exceptionally fine appearance is desired. It is usable full length without waste and may be mixed grain (MG).

"B" Bevel
SIDING

Appearance closely approaching that of the higher grades is often achieved with siding of this grade which contains slightly more character and some cuttings in longer pieces. Craftsmen of even moderate skill find it easy to apply. It may be mixed grain (MG).

"C" Bevel
SIDING

Pieces of this grade have one or more characteristics which are not of the higher grades. The piece is not of a higher grade. Lengths are random with no specified percentages.

When Mothers Work, Their Children Pay

(This is the third of a series of articles on the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency in Greater Victoria.)

Children whose parents both work generally get poorer marks at school, get more school detentions, are more often called before school teachers and counsellors because of bad behavior, and are late for school more often than children whose mothers stay home to look after them.

These facts were determined in a just-completed exhaustive five-year survey taken among the 910 students at S. J. Willis Junior High School. It is the only known survey of its kind ever taken in Canada and proves what has been feared for some time—that working mothers are having a very serious effect on the characters of their children. One thing the survey did prove in favor of working mothers is that their children stay away from school less than other children. But, school principal Bernard Gillie explains, there is a tendency to come to school when a mother is not at home. Often a sick child stays in the school sick room rather than stay at home, because there is no one at home to take care of him.

"Often when a youngster is ill at school we can't send him home because there is no one home to look after him. We often phone a mother at work and she tells us to take the youngster home and

STEVEN TRUSCOTT
... 10 years?

Killer, 15 Won't Go To Jail

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen-year-old Steven Truscott, whose death sentence for murder in the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynn Harper was commuted Friday to life imprisonment, will be committed to a provincial training school with other youngsters rather than to a federal penitentiary with adults.

Good behavior could reduce his time in custody to as little as 10 years.

The boy was sentenced at Goderich last Oct. 1 for the slaying of the girl whose body was found in a woodlot near the Clinton RCAF base. He was to be hanged Dec. 8 but had received a reprieve until Feb. 18 to allow time for his appeal.

Algiers Army Chief Fired by De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle yesterday fired Maj. Gen. Jacques Massu as army chief in Algiers in a showdown with Algerian right-wing settlers who threaten revolt over de Gaulle's policies.

At the same time it was announced that de Gaulle would visit Algeria Feb. 3 for an inspection trip of the rebellious North African territory.

Money Factory Raided

VANCOUVER (CP) — An intensive international investigation started Friday following discovery of an underworld factory that police said flooded North American cities with $1,000,000 worth of bogus travelers' cheques and United States $20 bills.

Police said the factory, complete with a one-ton electric press and engraving plates, was scattered in two houses which also contained $174,110 in partially printed bogus $50 Bank of Nova Scotia travelers' cheques and U.S. $20 bills.

The raids followed a telephone tip from the underworld late Thursday.

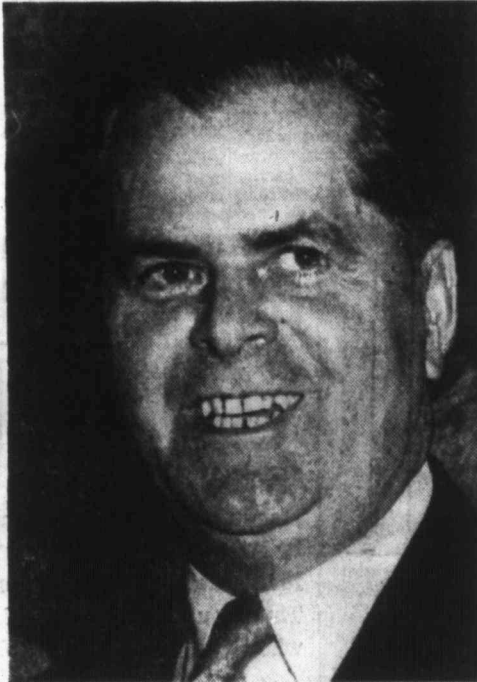

The discovery touched off an international probe by RCMP, FBI and U.S. treasury department agents.

A warrant was issued charging Llewellyn Theodore Welch, 48, with counterfeiting and possession of counterfeit money. Welch, who has been in hospital for nine days with a heart condition, is under police guard.

Fraud detectives raided one home after receiving the tip. They found a trunk containing the money and an assortment of printing paraphernalia, including inks, paper-cutting instruments, type-setting equipment, paper and a money order photograph.

Later they raided the second house and discovered the press. There were 29 engraving plates in the trunk and two with the press.

"The trunk and the press together constituted a complete printing factory," said deputy chief constable Gordon Ambrose.

PREMIER BENNETT
... it wasn't flu

Tranquilizers Hold With Painful Grip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Heinz E. Lehmann, a prominent psychiatrist, told Senate investigators yesterday that people can become addicted to the use of tranquilizer drugs. He called it "a dangerous abuse."

Dr. Lehmann said large doses of meprobamate, sold under the trade names Miltown and Equanil, if continued "over a period of several weeks will produce addiction."

Dr. Lehmann, chief psychiatrist at Verdun Protestant Hospital in Montreal, was a pioneer in promoting the use of tranquilizers in North America.

Dr. Lehmann and Dr. Fritz Freyhan, research director of the Delaware State Hospital, said Miltown advertisements in medical journals contained inaccurate and misleading statements. They singled out claims that the drug was "non-addictive" and "well-suited for prolonged therapy."

Operation Success He's 'Satisfactory'

Premier Bennett yesterday successfully underwent an emergency operation for the removal of a kidney stone.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said last night the major operation, lasting almost two hours, was a success and gave the 59-year-old premier's condition as satisfactory.

Mr. Bennett was stricken Tuesday night with what was believed to be "a simple case of flu." He remained home Wednesday, and Thursday afternoon he was admitted to the hospital for observation.

The final decision to operate at once was made at 1 p.m. yesterday after surgeons studied two sets of X-ray plates.

News of the serious nature of the premier's illness came just a week before the opening of the fourth sitting of the 25th B.C. legislature on Thursday.

A government spokesman said it was hoped that Mr. Bennett would be back on the floor of the House at the time of the presentation of the budget Feb. 12.

Doctors warned, however, that it would probably be three weeks before the premier is discharged from hospital.

Health Minister Eric Martin, it was indicated, is a likely choice for acting premier.

The premier's executive assistant, Dan Ekman, told reporters Mr. Martin holds the post of permanent deputy premier and "presumably that succession will be followed for the opening."

Well Enough Monday

However, he added, it is anticipated the premier will be well enough to discuss with his advisers final details for the forthcoming session on Monday.

Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent of St. Joseph's Hospital, explained the nature of the operation which was scheduled for 3 p.m. yesterday—the time of a press conference in the premier's office.

"It is a major operation," said Dr. Boettcher, "but under present-day techniques it is not alarming. It is not critical."

Dr. Boettcher said X-rays showed a single stone in the left kidney.

He said final decision to operate was not taken until 1 p.m. yesterday, a scant two hours before the operation took place, and added, "The nature of the condition is not one that can be left..."

Two surgeons who successfully completed the operation were not identified.

"I have been asked not to disclose their names," said Dr. Boettcher. "But I can assure you the premier is in good hands."

Mrs. Bennett was with her husband right up to the time he was wheeled into the operating room, and she remained at his bedside through the evening.

Dr. Boettcher said "no difficulties" are anticipated following the 105-minute operation to remove the kidney stone. It had been estimated surgery would take two hours, but it was over at 4:45 p.m. some 15 minutes earlier than expected.

Ready for Discharge

Barring unforeseen complications, said Dr. Boettcher, Mr. Bennett may be ready for discharge in about three weeks.

It is the first hospital sojourn of his adult life for Mr. Bennett, a man of outstanding vigor who is normally brimming with health and enthusiasm.

A spokesman for the premier's office said Mr. Bennett had been absent from work for health reasons on only two occasions. Once he suffered from flu and on the other occasion had a sprained tendon in his heel.

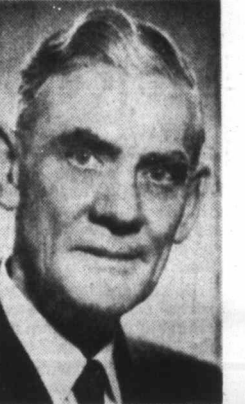

Mr. Bennett worked a full day Tuesday, leaving his office about 6 p.m. His executive assistant said the premier showed no signs of illness and "completed a very full and busy day." He said it was while at home Tuesday evening that Mr. Bennett first complained of an upset stomach.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan expressed sympathy and best wishes for a speedy recovery by Mr. Bennett on behalf of all opposition members of the House.

"It was with regret that I learned that the premier has been stricken," said Mr. Strachan from Vancouver, where he was visiting UBC. "I sincerely hope the operation will be successful and that his recovery will be speedy. I extend to the premier and Mrs. Bennett the sympathies and best wishes of the Opposition."

Other members of the premier's family, living in Kelowna, have been advised, a spokesman said, but at present there are no plans to bring them to his bedside.

P. A. GIBBS
... condition good

Liberal Chair Empty

There will be empty chairs on both sides of the House when the fourth session of the 25th Legislative Assembly opens Thursday.

Besides the stricken Premier Bennett, Tom Bate (SC, Vancouver Point Grey) and P. A. Gibbs (L, Oak Bay) will be absent. Mr. Bate has been ill for some time and Mr. Gibbs underwent a serious operation Thursday. His condition was good in Royal Jubilee Hospital last night.

Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy, who has been on the sick list for weeks, expects to return to his office Monday.

Railroaded on Rates

Strachan To Toast 'Memory'

LADYSMITH—Robert Strachan, MLA for Cowichan-Newcastle and a Scot, will give the address to "the immortal memory" at the Ladysmith Burns' Club supper to be held today in the Native Sons Hall.

Port Alberni Harbor Busier in '59

PORT ALBERNI—Annual report issued by the harbor commission showed a total of 255 vessels arrived during 1959, an increase of 33 over the previous year, while the total cargo exported was 401,638 tons, 46,873 tons more than in 1958.

ALBERNI—A University of British Columbia expert says B.C. is paying practically double the national average in rail freight charges.

William Hughes, chairman of the transportation division of the faculty of economics, said the average cost of a carload of good transported out of B.C. is nearly $430 per car.

The comparable cost for goods shipped out of Alberta was $280 per car and the Canadian average was $220. Mr. Hughes said in a speech to the Alberni Chamber of Commerce the rail freight rates have increased by 157 per cent in the last 10 years. With every rise the disparity between B.C. and its competitors grew wider.

A B.C. lumber shipper sending an average 35-ton carload to Ontario paid $350 more than his New Brunswick competitor.

The $350 was absorbed by the shipper which meant lower profits and cutbacks in other production costs, including labor.

Truck Flips On Malahat

DUNCAN—A Victoria truck driver, who narrowly missed going over a 1,000-foot cliff on the Malahat, is in fair condition in hospital here.

Lionel Kirkwood, 2528 Trans-Canada Highway, suffered concussion and a badly cut head in the accident at about 2:30 p.m.

Witnesses said they saw the car's wheels start to wobble just before the accident. A link in the steering system was later found to be broken. It happened near a sheer drop, a few feet from the north-bound lane. Kirkwood was driving in.

The one-ton pickup had just passed the cliff area when the truck veered sharply to the right and off the road. It smashed into a rock bluff and turned over.

Kirkwood was thrown from the truck. Doctors at King's Daughters' Hospital said last night it was not known if his skull had been fractured, but said that X-rays would be taken.

Quadra Ferry Subsidy On Month-to-Month Basis

Provincial cabinet yesterday agreed to continue the subsidy to Thomson Tug and Barge Ltd. for the Campbell River-Quadra Island ferry service on a month-to-month basis.

The subsidy has been $37,000 a year. The provincial government is now awaiting delivery of its own car ferry which will be operated by the highways department.

Underwater TV Sees 'Wreckage'

Pieces of what could be the wreckage of a CF-100 jet interceptor that crashed Tuesday were spotted by an underwater television camera four miles east of Comox yesterday during a 10-hour sweep of the crash area.

Will Lawther of Victoria's B.C. Sub Marine Operations Ltd., which is conducting the underwater search by TV, said his team would return to the area today, weather permitting, in an effort to confirm their find.

He termed yesterday's search "pretty successful." "We saw several pieces that could be the wreckage," Mr. Lawther said.

The scanning covered an area 150 feet wide and 800 feet long in Georgia Strait where the Comox-based plane, finishing a routine flight, crashed with two officers aboard.

What is believed to be wreckage was sighted on the bottom 280 to 290 feet below the surface, Mr. Lawther said.

No Beds for Elderly For Nursing Care

NANAIMO—There are no beds on central Vancouver Island for elderly patients requiring nursing home care.

This was disclosed during a round-table discussion at city hall yesterday when Mayor Pete Maffeo called in a group to discuss the local situation. Social welfare officer Don Bingham and regional medical officer Dr. C. J. G. Mackenzie said that conditions in local licensed boarding establishments—there are no nursing homes in the city—were satisfactory.

Mr. Bingham said, however, that he had been unable to locate a bed this week for an elderly man who needed constant trained supervision, but who could not be kept in Nanaimo General Hospital.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Firemen raced over icy roads to Oyster Bay early yesterday but failed to save an eight-room house destroyed in a blaze started by an overheated oil stove.

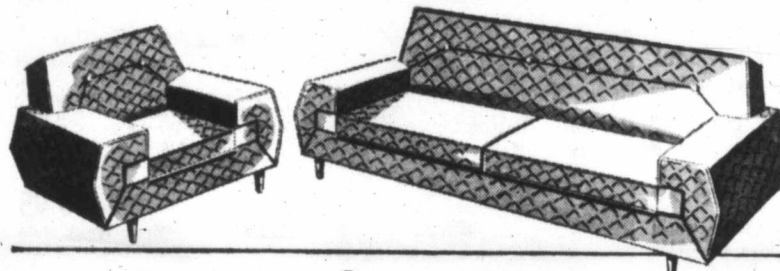

Occupants Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cox were awakened by cracking of the fire and fled the home in night clothes with their daughter Marianne, 14.

Mr. Cox praised Campbell River firemen for fast action. Neighbor Mrs. B. Blasecki gave the family shelter and Red Cross supplied clothing and bedding.

Sprawl, Ugliness Here Too

You Can't Push People
Architects' Panel ToldSubdivision
Owners
Satisfied

By R. O. MARRION

Regulation of people's homes and communities can't be pushed far beyond what people think they want, a committee of distinguished architects was told several times yesterday in Victoria.

The architects, completing a cross-country study of Canada's residential environment and obtaining views of many sections of the populace, heard of Victoria problems familiar elsewhere: urban "sprawl," ugliness, monotony and mediocrity in housing.

But it also heard from the Victoria Local Council of Women that a survey in December disclosed that home-owners in five subdivisions developed since the war were satisfied with the interior design of their homes and were almost unanimously satisfied with the size of their lots, although some felt there was a lack of varied exterior design.

'Attractive'

From the University Women's Club of Victoria it heard a description of the old Lansdowne airfield subdivision—sharply criticized by planners—as "attractive for people with modest incomes."

And from Reeve George Chatterton, of Saanich, it heard that "if I had continued (with a proposed policy of combating urban sprawl) through limiting development to certain areas I would have been tarred and feathered... It would require a tremendous amount of education before people would accept such restriction."

From J. Everett Brown, B.C.'s deputy minister of municipal affairs, it also heard the personal opinion that community planning, a comparatively new profession, hasn't had "adequate time to reassess its advice in terms of what can be done in a true political sense—acceptable to the majority of the people."

Education

A member of the University Women's Club delegation, Muriel Johnson, suggested earlier education on housing and seemed to surprise the architects.

The pride of ownership of four walls, she said, superseded anything else in the minds of children she taught; this was a thing they must have as soon as possible. They showed active interest in good home design, but most young people hadn't the opportunity to learn anything about it until "they're so tied up financially they can't do anything else."

Among other submissions to the committee:

Low Cost

Victoria's low-cost residential subdivisions, the Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C. said, "with few exceptions show undesirable characteristics, and the trend seems to be to this type of development."

The lack of proper and adequate design of housing "stems we believe from the policy of maximum financing for minimum performance on the part of mortgage and finance companies."

Roderick Clack, Victoria's assistant city engineer and a member of the branch delegation, said he thought it was the opinion of architects and planners "that we have a deep need of some form of overall metropolitan government to overcome the problems that are making a mess of our urban environment."

Not Inspiring

The University Women's Club found some subdivisions "pleasant but not inspiring," and chairman Peter Dobush of Montreal said this indicated an aesthetic sense—"We have been so often told the housewife hasn't the same appreciation for these things as the professional; this indicates she has."

Architects Hear Home Planning Woes

Critic Nostalgic

'Rich Ghetto'
Part of City

Vancouver architect C. E. Pratt was influenced by nostalgic affection for Victoria when he said he was agast while driving in from the airport.

He admitted that yesterday with a smile.

"I went to school here, you know," he said.

But neither he, nor other members of a committee studying Canada's residential environment, nor Victorians who appeared before it, described Victoria as faultless.

John C. Parkin, Toronto architect and just as outspoken a member of the committee as Mr. Pratt, said he was surprised by many things in Victoria, including the "Riviera quality" of the waterfront. He was impressed by two sides of the Inner Harbor—but the third side, he said, "is a mess."

ON ONE SIDE

And he criticized Victoria's "social apartheid" with "a rich ghetto on one side of the city." These are some of the things said during the day's hearings.

Mr. Parkin: "Around the city I couldn't help but feel some streets seemed to defy the contours of the topography. Who lays them out?"

AUDACITY

Mr. Parkin: Some subdivisions suggest "the audacity of the merchant builder rather than the sensibility of a person with one iota of community responsibility."

Victoria architect Peter Cotton: "There isn't a decent place to live (for elderly people) within half a mile of Eaton's."

Vancouver architect Warren Kennedy: "How can such an enlightened thing as the Uplands happen?"

MORE DEMOCRATIC

Frank W. Nicolls, Capital Region Planning Board chairman: "Victoria is a funny place from a social standpoint. It's probably more democratic than any other city I know, yet in many ways it's the exact opposite. Victoria is more a state of mind than a municipality."

The Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C.: "Individually the houses being constructed in these new subdivisions leave much to be desired. The usual epithets apply: stucco boxes of monotonous mediocrity."

The Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, referring to the subdivision of the Saanich peninsula between Shelbourne and Richmond: "This eruption of stucco boxes is subdivision at its worst."

Ownership
Dwindling
—Architect

The day when most families own their own homes on their own lots is coming to an end, a Victoria architect believes.

Why? Because "you would be better off renting," said Frank W. Nicolls, chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board.

A Canadian home-owner, he said, couldn't write off local taxes and interest payments against income tax, as his U.S. counterpart could, "but an apartment owner can, and the man in the apartment gets the benefit."

Murison Tells B.C.

Pay All Costs
Of Education

The provincial government should assume by degrees the whole cost of operation of the education system and split the cost of new school construction 50-50 with municipal government, Maj. Gen. C. A. P. Murison said last night.

Speaking to a meeting of the Saanich Progressive Conservative Association Mr. Murison, seeking a Conservative nomination in Victoria, charged that municipal governments are "forced to meet the requirements of an atomic age with revenues based on horse-and-buggy days."

"The provincial government, instead of using the property tax to do its original job, has taken the easy way out and relieved pressure in its own revenues by using the tax for provincial services. The municipalities have had to raise taxes and increase their debts."

"The way out is to recognize the difference between services to people and services to property and divide financial responsibility accordingly," he said.

"Services to people (hospitals, education, welfare, etc.) are the responsibility of the provincial government, and should be paid out of taxes raised on the ability to pay. Services to property are local responsibility and should be paid out of taxes raised on the basis of benefits received."

He told the gathering that education is a service to the people, and should not be another burden on the property tax.

'Love of Freedom'
In Burns' Verse

Robert Burns put his love of freedom into his poetry and left it behind as a message of hope to all men, Rev. Dr. Harry Lennox of Vancouver said here last night.

Speaking to The Immortal Memory at the annual Burns Night of the Victoria St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society, Dr. Lennox said: "Burns wrote as he believed, and in poetry, the language of all men."

"Burns' poetry is both a prick to our conscience, and a statement that there may yet be worldwide love and understanding," he said.

More than 200 people attended the dinner, held to mark the 201st anniversary of the poet's birth on Jan. 25, 1759, in Ayr, Scotland.

The haggis was carried in by John Robinson, escorted by Gerry English and Stewart Kennedy. Pipers were Pipe Majors Ian Duncan and Francis Knight.

The address to the haggis was given by the Society's president, Charles Cameron.

Girls' Protection
Police Objective

Protection of the innocent, even more than prosecution of the guilty, is the objective of Saanich police investigating photography in the nude of young Greater Victoria girls.

"Our main concern," said Chief Const. Bert Pearson yesterday, "is to protect young girls from this sort of scheme. We don't want to hurt them, even those involved; we do want to stop the racket, and to keep others from being drawn in."

STRONG DETERRENT

The chief welcomes as a strong deterrent the present glare of publicity, started in a series of articles on juvenile delinquency by Colonist reporter Alec Merriman.

"We know it's not nice to read, to think that young girls of this community would pose for nude photographs. However, it has been done; pictures have been taken," said Chief Pearson.

"Now, before anyone gets too deeply involved, we want to stop the whole thing. We'll prosecute if we can get enough evidence against the people responsible for setting the racket up, but it's not easy. No arrests are pending at present."

NOT LIKE THEFT

"It's not a bit like prosecuting someone for theft, in that case, attendant publicity does not hurt the victim of the theft."

"Here, young girls have been victimized. Not only they, but their families and friends would suffer from publicity."

"Someone gave them a fast, smooth line of patter about modelling. The girls were dazzled with glamorous thoughts of cameras, movies, beautiful clothes. What started as innocent ambition proved to be something far different—for the photographs were destined only for the smut market."

Loggers
Average
$108.27

Average weekly wages in the logging industry of British Columbia broke the $100 mark in October by rising to $108.27 and thereby joining the pulp and paper mills and public utility operations in the $100-a-week class as the highest-paid industry in British Columbia.

Trade Minister Bonner yesterday also said hotels and restaurants are currently the lowest-paid group, with average weekly earnings of $45.97. This, he said is partly due to the higher incidence of women employees in that field.

When Mothers Work, Their Children Pay

(This is the third of a series of articles on the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency in Greater Victoria.)

Children whose parents both work generally get poorer marks at school, get more school detentions, are more often called before school teachers and counsellors because of bad behavior, and are late for school more often than children whose mothers stay home to look after them.

These facts were determined in a just-completed exhaustive five-year survey taken among the 910 students at S. J. Willis Junior High School. It is the only known survey of its kind ever taken in Canada and proves what has been feared for some time—that working mothers are having a very serious effect on the characters of their children. One thing the survey did prove in favor of working mothers is that their children stay away from school less than other children. But, school principal Bernard Gillie explains, there is a tendency to come to school when a mother is not at home. Often a sick child stays in the school sick room rather than stay at home, because there is no one at home to take care of him. "Often when a youngster is ill at school we can't send him home because there is no one home to look after him. "We often phone a mother at work and she tells us to take the youngster home and

Killer, 15 Won't Go To Jail

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen-year-old Steven Truscott, whose death sentence for murder in the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynn Harper was commuted Friday to life imprisonment, will be committed to a provincial training school with other youngsters rather than to a federal penitentiary with adults.

Good behavior could reduce his time in custody to as little as 10 years.

The boy was sentenced at Goderich last Oct. 1 for the slaying of the girl whose body was found in a woodlot near the Clinton RCAF base. He was to be hanged Dec. 8 but had received a reprieve until Feb. 18 to allow time for his appeal.

Money Factory Raided

VANCOUVER (CP) — An intensive international investigation started Friday following discovery of an underworld factory that police said flooded North American cities with $1,000,000 worth of bogus travellers' cheques and United States $20 bills.

Police said the factory, complete with a one-ton electric press and engraving plates, was scattered in two houses which also contained $174,110 in partially printed bogus $50 Bank of Nova Scotia travellers' cheques and U.S. $20 bills.

The raids followed a telephone tip from the underworld late Thursday.

The discovery touched off an international probe by RCMP, FBI and U.S. treasury department agents.

A warrant was issued charging Llewellyn Theodore Welch, 48, with counterfeiting and possession of counterfeit money. Welch, who has been in hospital for nine days with a heart condition, is under police guard.

Fraud detectives raided one home after receiving the tip. They found a trunk containing the money and an assortment of printing paraphernalia, including inks, paper-cutting instruments, type-setting equipment, paper and a money order photocopier.

Later they raided the second house and discovered the press. There were 29 engraving plates in the trunk and two with the press.

"The trunk and the press together constituted a complete printing factory," said deputy chief constable Gordon Ambrose.

Tranquilizers Hold With Painful Grip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Heinz E. Lehmann, a prominent psychiatrist, told Senate investigators yesterday that people can become addicted to the use of tranquilizer drugs. He called it "a dangerous abuse."

Dr. Lehmann said large doses of meprobamate, sold under the trade names Miltown and Equanil, if continued over a period of several weeks will produce addiction. Dr. Lehmann, chief psychiatrist at Verdun Protestant Hospital in Montreal, was a pioneer in promoting the use of tranquilizers in North America.

Dr. Lehmann and Dr. Fritz Freyhan, research director of the Delaware State Hospital, said Miltown advertisements in medical journals contained inaccurate and misleading statements. They singled out claims that the drug was "non-addictive" and "well-suited for prolonged therapy."

Kidney Stone Removed

Premier Bennett yesterday successfully underwent an emergency operation for the removal of a kidney stone.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said last night the major operation, lasting almost two hours, was a success and gave the 59-year-old premier's condition as satisfactory.

Mr. Bennett was stricken Tuesday night with what was believed to be "a simple case of flu." He remained home Wednesday, and Thursday afternoon he was admitted to the hospital for observation.

The final decision to operate at once was made at 1 p.m. yesterday after surgeons studied two sets of X-ray plates.

News of the serious nature of the premier's illness came just six days before the opening of the fourth sitting of the 25th B.C. legislature on Thursday.

A government spokesman said it was hoped that Mr. Bennett would be back on the floor of the House at the time of the presentation of the budget Feb. 12.

Doctors warned, however, that it would probably be three weeks before the premier is discharged from hospital.

Health Minister Eric Martin, it was indicated, is a likely choice for acting premier.

The premier's executive assistant, Dan Ekman, told reporters Mr. Martin holds the post of permanent deputy premier and "presumably that succession will be followed for the opening."

Well Enough Monday

However, he added, it is anticipated the premier will be well enough to discuss with his advisers final details for the forthcoming session on Monday.

Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent of St. Joseph's Hospital, explained the nature of the operation which was scheduled for 3 p.m. yesterday—the time of a press conference in the premier's office.

"It is a major operation," said Dr. Boettcher, "but under present-day techniques it is not alarming. It is not critical."

Dr. Boettcher said X-rays showed a single stone in the left kidney.

He said final decision to operate was not taken until 1 p.m. yesterday, a scant two hours before the operation took place, and added, "The nature of the condition is not one that can be left."

Two surgeons who successfully completed the operation were not identified.

"I have been asked not to disclose their names," said Dr. Boettcher. "But I can assure you the premier is in good hands."

Mrs. Bennett was with her husband right up to the time he was wheeled into the operating room, and she remained at his bedside through the evening.

Dr. Boettcher said "no difficulties" are anticipated following the 105-minute operation to remove the kidney stone. It had been estimated surgery would take two hours, but it was over at 4:45 p.m. some 15 minutes earlier than expected.

Out in Three Weeks

Barring unforeseen complications, said Dr. Boettcher, Mr. Bennett may be ready for discharge in about three weeks.

It is the first hospital sojourn of his adult life for Mr. Bennett, a man of outstanding vigor who is normally brimming with health and enthusiasm.

A spokesman for the premier's office said Mr. Bennett had been absent from work for health reasons on only two occasions. Once he suffered from flu and on the other occasion had a sprained tendon in his heel.

Mr. Bennett worked a full day Tuesday, leaving his office about 6 p.m. His executive assistant said the premier showed no signs of illness and "completed a very full and busy day." He said it was while at home Tuesday evening that Mr. Bennett first complained of an upset stomach.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan expressed sympathy and best wishes for a speedy recovery by Mr. Bennett on behalf of all opposition members of the House.

"It was with regret that I learned that the premier has been stricken," said Mr. Strachan from Vancouver, where he was visiting UBC.

"I sincerely hope the operation will be successful and that his recovery will be speedy. I extend to the premier and Mrs. Bennett the sympathies and best wishes of the Opposition."

Other members of the premier's family, living in Kelowna, have been advised, a spokesman said, but at present there are no plans to bring them to his bedside.

Liberal Chair Empty

There will be empty chairs on both sides of the House when the fourth session of the 25th Legislative Assembly opens Thursday.

Besides the stricken Premier Bennett, Tom Bate (SC, Vancouver Point Grey) and P. A. Gibbs (L, Oak Bay) will be absent. Mr. Bate has been ill for some time and Mr. Gibbs underwent a serious operation Thursday. His condition was good in Royal Jubilee Hospital last night.

Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy, who has been on the sick list for weeks, expects to return to his office Monday.

Algiers Army Chief Fired by De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle yesterday fired Maj.-Gen. Jacques Massu as army chief in Algiers in a showdown with Algerian right-wing settlers who threaten revolt over de Gaulle's policies.

At the same time it was announced that de Gaulle would visit Algeria Feb. 5 for an inspection trip of the rebellious North African territory.

It was not immediately clear whether Massu also was removed as civil administrator of Algiers, the capital of Algeria.

De Gaulle moved swiftly to smash the opposition elements in Algeria who hold Massu, a paratroop general, as their hero and who have vowed to fight against de Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria.

ABOARD THE USS LEWIS (UPI) — America's cigar-shaped bathyscaphe Trieste today submerged in the Marianas Trench southeast of Guam in an attempt to reach the bottom of the world's deepest known underwater canyon.

Dr. Jacques Piccard, one of the scientists participating in the dive, and Lieut. Don Walsh were aboard the bathyscaphe as it began its dive early today.

Dr. Piccard reported that all was well as it reached a depth of 300 feet. The deep dive is expected to last about 10 hours.

The Challenger Deep, which forms part of the Marianas Trench, is believed the deepest in the world, and to touch its bottom is one of the scientific objectives of the Trieste.

Dr. Andreas B. Rechnitzer of San Diego, Calif., who heads the operation, had to postpone the dive Friday for 24 hours because of inclement sea conditions in the trench.

Rail Talks Off; Conciliation Next

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations between the rail companies and their non-operating employees for a $65,000,000-a-year wage increase broke off Friday.

The unions' joint negotiating committee headed by Frank Hall promptly announced it will ask federal Labor Minister Michael Starr to appoint a conciliation board to look into the contract dispute. In Ottawa, Mr. Starr said he would act quickly.
